Truman Address Tonight

Will be First Move To Induce Russia Into a Realistic Talk on Peace

By Ernest B. Vaccaro
SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 17—(P)—President Truman speaks to the nation tonight for the first time since his Pacific talk with General MacArthur.

The occasion is a major foreign policy address — the opening shot of a forceful, new effort to induce Russia to talk peace in realistic terms. It will be made in War Memorial Opera House, birthplace of the United Nations.

There is a big question as to just how much Mr. Truman will disclose of his concentrated talk with the United Nations commander for the Korean war in their man-to-man meeting on isolated Wake Island Sunday.

Of that meeting, the President has said "we are fully aware of the dangers that lie ahead, but we are confident that we can surmount these dangers."

In a heavy mist and drizzle, Mr. Truman took his daily early morning walk.

Aides said he was taking every precaution to provide a non-partisan backdrop for his foreign policy speech, avoiding any connection with California's hot U. S. senatorial and gubernatorial campaigns.

Aloof of Candidates
Every effort was made by the President's aides to keep Democratic candidates away from his quarters in the Fairmont hotel, after his arrival aboard the presidential plane, "The Independence," from Honolulu yesterday.

Aides said Mr. Truman was operating on the theory that on politics is the best politics for the administration during this critical period in world affairs.

His major foreign policy pronouncement is scheduled for 8:30 p. m. (11:30 p. m. EST) in San Francisco's opera house — where the charter of the United Nations was drafted during the final campaign of World War II.

The President spent a good part of last night in conference with top officials on the wording of the address, which will be amplified in a talk before the U. N. general assembly in New York Oct. 24.

He went over rough drafts with W. Averell Harriman, special assistant for foreign affairs; Charles S. Murphy, special counsel and principal speech-writer; presidential press secretary Charles G. Ross; administrative assistant George Elsey, and others.

Conference Background
President Truman's week-end conference with General MacArthur on tiny, scrubby Wake Island furnishes the background for the address which will be beamed by the Voice of America throughout the world and carried by the major radio networks in this country.

These points are expected to be emphasized:

1. The United States is primarily interested in bringing to the Korean people something of the living standards of the American people — by reconstruction and rehabilitation.

2. Improvements advocated for Korea will serve as a pattern for what the U. S. would like to do for other countries in need of American aid.

3. The U. S. wants neither special consideration nor military installations in Korea and would like to get its troops out as soon as it is safe to do so; and

4. There must be no letdown in congressional support of heavy spending for defense at home and for allied nations abroad so long as the threat of communism imperils any spot in the world where an invasion could explode into another world war.

Mr. Truman showed unusual care in the preparation of tonight's speech — expected to be the opening and an intensive drive to counter Russian propaganda which tries to picture the U. S. as an "aggressor" nation.

The President calls it a great "campaign of truth" aimed at dramatizing this country's peaceful intentions throughout the world. State department officials are working overnight on means of breaking through jamming techniques — by which the Soviets hope to prevent American ideals from reaching Russia and satellite countries.

Stassen Wants Answer
Harold E. Stassen, Republican ex-governor of Minnesota and presently president of the University of Pennsylvania, said in Washington last night that the American people are entitled to know whether Mr. Truman's conference with MacArthur means

Rural-Urban Dinner by the Rotary Club

D. H. Doane Gives Address on Topic Of 'Leadership'

The Sedalia Rotary club was host to thirty-seven Pettis county 4-H club leaders at a dinner meeting held Monday night at the Hotel Bothwell.

The speaker of the evening was D. Howard Doane, of St. Louis, Mo., chairman of the board of Doane Agricultural Service, and chairman of the Missouri 4-H Club Foundation. Mr. Doane's subject was "The Responsibilities of Leadership." He pointed out that the test of a good leader was the ability to inspire and that inspiration quite often came from hard work and preparation and a better knowledge of the field in which a persons led those who followed.

Mr. Doane was a member of the task force of the Department of Agriculture on the Hoover Commission and he stated that statistics gathered proved that the leadership in 4-H Club work across the nation was completed devoid of any subservient element and that this leadership truly represented genuine Americanism.

The speaker was presented by Oscar De Wolf, chairman of the Rural-Urban Committee of the Sedalia Rotary club, who was introduced by Henry Holst, October (Please turn to Page 9, Column 2)

Another Rise On Newsprint

TORONTO, Oct. 17—(P)—An increase of $10 a ton in the price of standard newsprint, effective Nov. 1, was announced today by the Abitibi Power and Paper Company, Ltd.

It was the second Canadian company to announce a $10 boost in newsprint price in four days. Powell River, Ltd., announced on Friday it would charge $109 a ton, $10 more than it had been asking. It gave increased production costs as the reason for the boost.

In Los Angeles earlier this week Rep. Emanuel Celler (Dem-NY), chairman of a U. S. House of Representatives committee investigating the newsprint situation, said if American companies followed the lead of the Powell River firm, he would ask for prosecution under the anti-trust laws.

Celler said the Powell advance "undoubtedly will be followed by all newsprint companies both in the United States and Canada." He added that "this is nothing but a price squeeze and if the American companies follow suit, I am going to ask President Truman to exercise his power under the defense production act to provide for cutbacks."

Agreement to Strengthen U. S. Forces in Far East

By Russell Brines

TOKYO, Oct. 17—(P)—American forces in the Far East will be strengthened considerably as a result of agreement between President Truman and General MacArthur at Wake Island, informed sources reported today.

They said Mr. Truman expressed agreement with MacArthur's outline of the Asiatic situation and his insistence that any further communist thrusts must be blocked with military power.

The U. S. Eighth army, normally stationed in Japan, and Far Eastern naval and air forces will be maintained at much greater

Former Mayor H. B. Carr, of Springfield, Dies

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Oct. 17—(P)—Harry B. Carr, 64, mayor of Springfield from 1940 to 1948 and a coal dealer here for the past 40 years, died today at his home here.

In ill health for several months, Mr. Carr lapsed into a coma four days ago from which he never recovered. A native of Mount Pleasant, Texas, he came to Springfield in 1904.

Legion Head Here Oct. 31

Post 16 Monday Named Delegates to District Meeting

The American Legion Post 16 met in regular session Monday night at the Legion hall, 111½ East Fifth street, with Commander John Thomas presiding. One of the biggest crowds in many a meeting night was in attendance.

The various committees gave their reports. C. O. Burk reported on the membership drive and stressed the importance of getting new members and the old members to renew their membership. It was hoped that at least 350 members will have their 1951 dues in by next meeting night.

Commander Thomas announced that the national commander, Erle Cooke, Jr., would be in Sedalia on the morning of October 31, and asked that all members turn out to meet him if they possibly could. The Smith-Cotton band will be on hand that morning to welcome the head Legion man. A big dinner affair at noon will be held in the national commander's honor in Marshall that day. All members desiring to attend this dinner meet should contact Commander Thomas for reservations.

It was announced that the American Legion auxiliary of Post 16 will hold a pie supper and dance at the American Legion hall on October 19. All Post 16 members, their wives or girl friends are expected to attend.

Delegates Elected

Delegates and alternates were elected to attend the district meeting in Slater next Sunday. The delegates: John A. Thomas, W. G. McMellen, Pete O'Brien, Walter Loveland, Harvey Dow, E. Lewis, Ed Mein, Jack Albert, C. O. Burk and Mayor Herb Studer.

The alternates are: Roy Wills, Frank Strain, Carl Franklin, Dick Wood, Ralph Baker, Linden Jones, A. L. Gorsett, Cecil Glenn, Charles Hull and Leo Sobaski.

A social period was enjoyed following the meeting, at which time refreshments were served. Jack Albert is in charge of arranging for the refreshments at each meeting.

The conferees agreed to remove American troops from Korea as quickly as possible, entrusting security problems to the South Koreans.

License Fee to Be Required of Electricians

Report to Council Of Improvement At Eating Places

In the regular semi-monthly meeting of the Sedalia city council held Monday night in the city hall, sections 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17 of city ordinance 3081, dating back to 1930 were repealed and new sections legislated. These sections have to do with the licensing and bonding of electricians in the city and for inspection or all alterations and new wiring done in the city.

Under the new legislation a $50 license is required for all contractors, and individual electricians, and they must post a $1000 bond. For all alteration and new wiring done within the city a written permit must be secured from the city electrical engineer and the board of examiners. If such work is approved upon inspection a certificate of acceptance will be issued.

The council approved a resolution by which money left in trust from the estate of the late Jennie Jaynes Lewis will be used by a Pro Forma Decree corporation (which is now being formed) to (Please turn to Page 9, Column 3)

Controls Not Necessary

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(P)—The man in charge of mobilizing the nation for the huge rearmament program says it will mean that Americans must work longer hours, pay still higher taxes and endure "cuts and sacrifices" in their living standard.

And while it may be possible to avoid general wage and price controls if scarce buying slacks off, W. Stuart Symington said last night, "we are now getting organized . . . for such price and wage action as may be needed."

An assurance came today from a top Agriculture department official that there is no need at present for price controls on farm commodities.

Ralph S. Trigg, the department's production and marketing administrator, said in an address prepared for delivery in Atlantic City, N.J., that "we most certainly do not want to put on any controls which are not absolutely necessary."

General 'Ike' in Political Picture

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(P)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower once again has become a presidential possibility for 1952 and the big threat to all other would-be candidates, Republican or Democratic.

That is true despite the general's statement that he has not changed his mind about staying out of politics.

To Washington political experts it is apparent that the plug Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York put in Sunday for Eisenhower as a 1952 Republican presidential candidate has three important results:

1. Whether he likes it or not, General Ike definitely has been shoved into the 1952 political picture and will stay there unless and until he takes himself out just as definitely.

2. Dewey's pledge to work for the popular soldier-educator makes it rough on any other Republicans who may be hopelessly eyeing the White House. Dewey lost as the GOP presidential candidate in 1944 and 1948, but he still is head of the Republican party and still has a lot of influence in it.

3. President Truman now would find it more difficult to pick Eisenhower to command a proposed international army to defend western Europe against communism. There has been much speculation that the Columbia university president might be called back into uniform for this assignment. But if Mr. Truman sent Eisenhower to Europe now he might lay himself open to charges he was trying to get out of the country the man who might be his most dangerous political rival in 1952.

How a copy of the letter got into Democratic hands remained a mystery.

Hanley himself did not explain why he released the letter. But he apparently was aware that the Democrats had a copy of it.

Governor Dewey, campaigning in the metropolitan New York area, told newsmen he was "delighted Joe met these smear attacks head-on."

Hanley was in seclusion in New York City today. Aides said he probably would not discuss the letter again until tonight, when he is scheduled to make a political speech.

The Democratic state committee released photostatic copies of the Hanley letter but would not say how it obtained the text.

Shocked Over Decline in Voting

DETROIT, Oct. 17—(P)—The Detroit News, in an effort to help get out the vote Nov. 7, printed on its front page today the full text of a recent speech by Detroit's city clerk.

The city clerk, Thomas D. Leadbetter, pointed his remarks at Detroit voters, warning they were in danger of "losing democracy by default," and he also discussed the national picture.

He reported a "shocking shrinkage" in the total votes cast in the United States. His breakdown: Fifty years ago—83 of every 100 eligible voters went to the polls. Thirty years ago—72 out of every 100.

Fifteen years ago—57 out of every 100.

1948 presidential election—51 out of every 100.

Politico Furore Over Letter

Charged Hanley Was 'Paid Off' to Step Aside For Dewey

NEW YORK, Oct. 17—(P)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey said today that he never had discussed the personal financial situation of Lieutenant Governor Joe R. Hanley with him.

The governor said at a press conference regarding a letter Hanley made public yesterday: "I never personally discussed his (Mr. Hanley's) debts or his private situation with him. I never pried into his private affairs, nor did I ever hear anyone else do so."

Hanley is the Republican nominee for U. S. Senate.

ALBANY, N.Y., Oct. 17—(P)—Democrats today cited a letter by New York's Lt. Gov. Joe R. Hanley to support their charge that he had been paid off to step aside as a candidate for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, in favor of Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, and become instead the party's candidate for U. S. Senate.

The letter, which the 74-year-old Hanley himself released here late yesterday, said that "if I will consent to take the nomination to the United States Senate, I am definitely assured of being able to clean up my financial obligations within 90 days."

At Rochester, Frank Gannett, publisher of a group of newspapers and long a prominent Republican called for a grand jury investigation.

Gannett, who said he lent Hanley about $19,000 to help finance his pre-convention campaign, said "the letter reveals corruption in political affairs, and the penalties for these are severe."

Hanley denied to newsmen that there was anything illegal or morally wrong with any financial arrangements he had made.

Rep. Walter A. Lynch, Dewey's Democratic-liberal opponent for the governorship in the New York state election Nov. 7, charged that Hanley had been bought off "to give up his candidacy for the GOP gubernatorial nomination and to accept the Senate nomination as a substitute."

The lieutenant governor had been assured of the gubernatorial nomination until Dewey changed his mind about retiring and announced Sept. 4 that he would seek a third term.

Says Reports 'Falsehoods'
The political bombshell exploded at a news conference, at which Hanley labelled "absolute falsehoods" reports about his finances and other matters.

Later, his secretary released copies of the letter, which Democrats said was addressed to Rep. W. Kingsland Macy of Suffolk county on Long Island.

Gannett reiterated that "the letter reveals corruption in political affairs" and he added that "corrupt politics strikes at the heart of our government."

He proposed that a grand jury—"preferably a federal grand jury"—be called upon to investigate. He said "the public is entitled to know the facts."

Gannett, once a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination, and Macy, former Republican state chairman, are generally understood in political circles to be on the "outs" with Governor Dewey.

How a copy of the letter got into Democratic hands remained a mystery.

Hanley himself did not explain why he released the letter. But he apparently was aware that the Democrats had a copy of it.

Governor Dewey, campaigning in the metropolitan New York area, told newsmen he was "delighted Joe met these smear attacks head-on."

The Lions club luncheon will be held Wednesday noon at the Bothwell hotel at which time the Prairie Ridge 4-H club, twice winners of the Lions club plaque at the annual Pettis County 4-H Club Fair and their leaders, Mrs. Wilbern Hayes and Charles Kinder will present the program.

J. W. Perry, assistant agricultural extension agent, will introduce the group.

Lion President Kenneth Buchholz will preside at the meeting where final arrangements for the Pet Show, October 22, will be made.

Two More U. S. Vessels Sunk Off Korea

One Dead And 36 Missing From Minesweepers

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—(P)—The Navy reported today that two more U. S. minesweepers have been sunk by mines in Korean waters, with one crew man dead and 12 missing and 79 injured.

The minesweepers, the Pirate and the Pledge, went down Oct. 12. Off Wonsan on the east coast of Korea.

The Navy said the Pirate sunk in about five minutes and the Pledge within one hour after they struck mines.

Survivors were picked up by the minesweepers Endicott and Incredible, and were later taken to hospitals in Pusan by the Endicott.

Rescue work was carried out under the fire of shore batteries on enemy held islands in Wonsan harbor. Navy ships and carrier planes, however, silenced the batteries before any of the survivors or rescue vessels were hit.

Previously mines in Korean waters have sunk one other U. S. mine sweeper and damaged two destroyers.

Be Ample to Eat For Americans

CINCINNATI, Oct. 17—(P)—Americans are assured of enough to eat in 1951, the heads of three large food industry concerns agreed today. But one warned they probably will have to pay more for all canned fruits and vegetables next year.

Speaking from prepared addresses at a panel discussion on meeting food requirements were: Herbert R. Krimendahl, president of Stokely-Van Camp, Inc., Indianapolis; Neil McElroy, president of Proctor & Gamble Co., Cincinnati and John Holmes, president of Swift and Company, Chicago.

Krimendahl said the canning industry "can produce sufficient canned food to feed an army as large as our population can support or that we could put into the field. With present facilities, the industry could probably exceed 25 per cent without too much difficulty."

Krimendahl said, however, that because of anticipated higher costs for labor, growers' products and materials, "1951 will see higher prices for all canned fruits and vegetables."

Holmes reviewed the supply outlook for beef, pork and lamb and said that meat production in 1951 is expected to be up 1,000,000,000 pounds over 1950.

McElroy said that "the outlook for beef, pork and lamb and said that meat production in 1951 is expected to be up 1,000,000,000 pounds over 1950."

He proposed that a grand jury—"preferably a federal grand jury"—be called upon to investigate. He said "the public is entitled to know the facts."

High lights of the program today was the judging of mules and carlot fat and feeder cattle in the livestock division.

Twenty-eight Die in Crash Of an Airliner

Twin Engined Liner Cracks Up In London Suburb

LONDON, Oct. 17—(P)—A twin-engined air liner smashed into a London suburb today, killing 28 of the 29 persons aboard.

British European Airways said an engine failed shortly after the plane took off from London for Glasgow. The plane, a Dakota, was attempting to return to London.

The air line said it carried 24 passengers, including one infant, and a crew of five.

"As far as we know all have been killed except one adult, either passenger or crew," a spokesman said. "The aircraft was completely burned out."

The survivor, a man, was taken to Edgware general hospital.

One report said the craft caught fire in the air, hit a house top, then plowed through a wall into a garden. One wing still teetered atop a house.

Belief Tanks Exploded
The crash was in suburban Mill Hill, a middle class residential area.

One eyewitness expressed belief the fuel tanks exploded. He said:

"No one could get near the plane, it was burning so fiercely, but I understand some of the passengers must have been thrown out because some bodies were taken away."

"As it sailed over the house one wing came off and struck a house. The plane crashed across the narrow road—Highwood Ash—and landed in the garden of another house."

The fuel tank blast "set fire to the shrubbery and trees but not to the house."

A large open space adjoins the crash scene, and the pilot may have been attempting to make a forced landing there.

L. C. Bryson in a Home Town Plug
Another Sedalian bragged about his old home town today when he got a chance to talk on the radio, in Chicago over Mutual Broadcasting System.

It was "Husband's Day" on the program, "Ladies Fair" with Tom Moore and one of the three husbands chosen was L. C. Bryson, 507 West Fifth street, and according to some of the Sedalians listening he "stole the show."

When asked who he was he spoke up proudly: "I'm L. C. Bryson of Sedalia, Mo., the best town in the world" and then went on to tell them that he was an employee of the Missouri Pacific. He is superintendent of safety for the system. When it came to singing he won the award by singing the song, "Over There."

The program was on at 1:00 o'clock this afternoon.

No Chorus Rehearsal
There will be no chorus rehearsal by the Helen G. Steele Music Club Wednesday afternoon at the club house, according to Mrs. A. H. Bratten, chairman.

U. S. First Cavalry Within Twelve Miles of Objective In Allied Drive

By Telmin Morin

TOKYO, Oct. 17—(P)—American and South Korean columns slashed to-night through shattered Communist remnants within 12 miles of the Red Korean capital, Pyongyang.

Just over a month after the Allied tide turned on the landing at Inchon, the war was running swiftly toward victory for the United Nations.

The U. S. First Cavalry and the Republic of Korea (ROK) First Divisions were racing each other for the Red capital. Each wanted to be first to level the knockout blow.

A field dispatch said the South Koreans plunged to within 12 miles southeast of Pyongyang Tuesday night before stopping to rest. A spokesman said the South Koreans expected to reach the Communist capital Wednesday.

AP Correspondent Don Whitehead, with the Americans, reported the capital is certain to come within range of Allied big guns in 24 hours or less.

Military circles in Tokyo say the fall of Pyongyang almost certainly will end the Korean war except for mopup operations against guerrilla forces.

AP Correspondent Hal Boyle reported the Americans were driving on Pyongyang in a 30-mile long column.

The foot troopers were forging ahead Tuesday night through disrupted Red defenses. Boyle said they might reach Pyongyang by Wednesday.

Little Time to Rest
ROK officers had trouble restraining the weary but eager South Korean troops from running along the road to Pyongyang.

Many of them had not stopped to rest for two days. They had fought back after a shattering military defeat—when the Reds invaded their southern half of Korea June 25—and the taste of victory was on their lips.

The South Koreans Tuesday drove from Suwon to Shanganju, only 20 miles southeast of Pyongyang.

The U. S. First Cavalry Division smashed nearly 30 miles from its kickoff point at Suwon. It bypassed Sariwon, 35 air miles south of Pyongyang, and drove over a secondary road into Hwangju, only 23 miles south of the Red capital on the main highway.

Then it swung northward so swiftly that the foot troopers seized a bridge before the surprised Red forces could blow it up. The foot troopers were within 20 miles or less of Pyongyang.

Both the Americans and ROKs were swinging along in open country along the flatland approaches to Pyongyang.

Behind the Americans, British and Australian Commonwealth Brigade troops sped 31 miles to Sariwon and captured that highway city.

On the east coast, ROK First Corps elements rolled within sight of Korea's great industrial city of Hamhung and its port.

Hal Boyle COLUMN

By Tom Lambert
(For Hal Boyle)

KUMCHON, North Korea—(P)—This is a city, the largest yet taken by the Americans in Red Korea, to which communism brought nothing but destruction and an obelisk.

The obelisk, a four-sided, five-tiered concrete tower, looms starkly amid the ruins of Kumchong. Its inscriptions extol long life for Stalin, the Soviet army, North Korea's Red leader Kim Il Sung and the Communist party.

Cavalry foot troopers commanded by Lt. Col. Paul Clifford, Franklin, N.H., entered the battered and broken city early Saturday.

The Reds must have left shortly before. In several houses there were half-eaten bowls of rice and bunches of freshly picked vegetables. One of the few prisoners taken said a reinforced battalion had withdrawn late Friday night. Mud huts lie powdered into dust by Allied bombs. Their roofs of galvanized iron glint dully on the ground.

There was only a handful of civilians in the ruined city. Some said the retreating Red army had warned the population—estimated at 25,000—that the Americans would assault their women, burn their homes and steal their food.

One woman who said she was the wife of a Red soldier told interrogators that the Communists threatened to kill Kumchong's residents if they didn't flee north with the Red army.

The eerie absence of civilians made it impossible to learn of the pattern of life under the Communists.

But there are a multitude of indications the Reds had been here.

Pictures of Stalin and Kim Il Sung show everywhere. There are many copies of Russian language magazines and newspapers, although it is doubtful if many Koreans read Russian. There are stocks of Russian-made military equipment. There are Communist posters galore in the Russian and Korean languages.

... And there is the obelisk, dominating the city.

In the police station are files of Korean language newspapers, with pictures purporting to show atrocities by the South Koreans against the Reds.

Kumchong's rail yards are a jungle of twisted iron and splintered wood. The sides of burned and charred freight cars stand out like ribs of a skeleton.

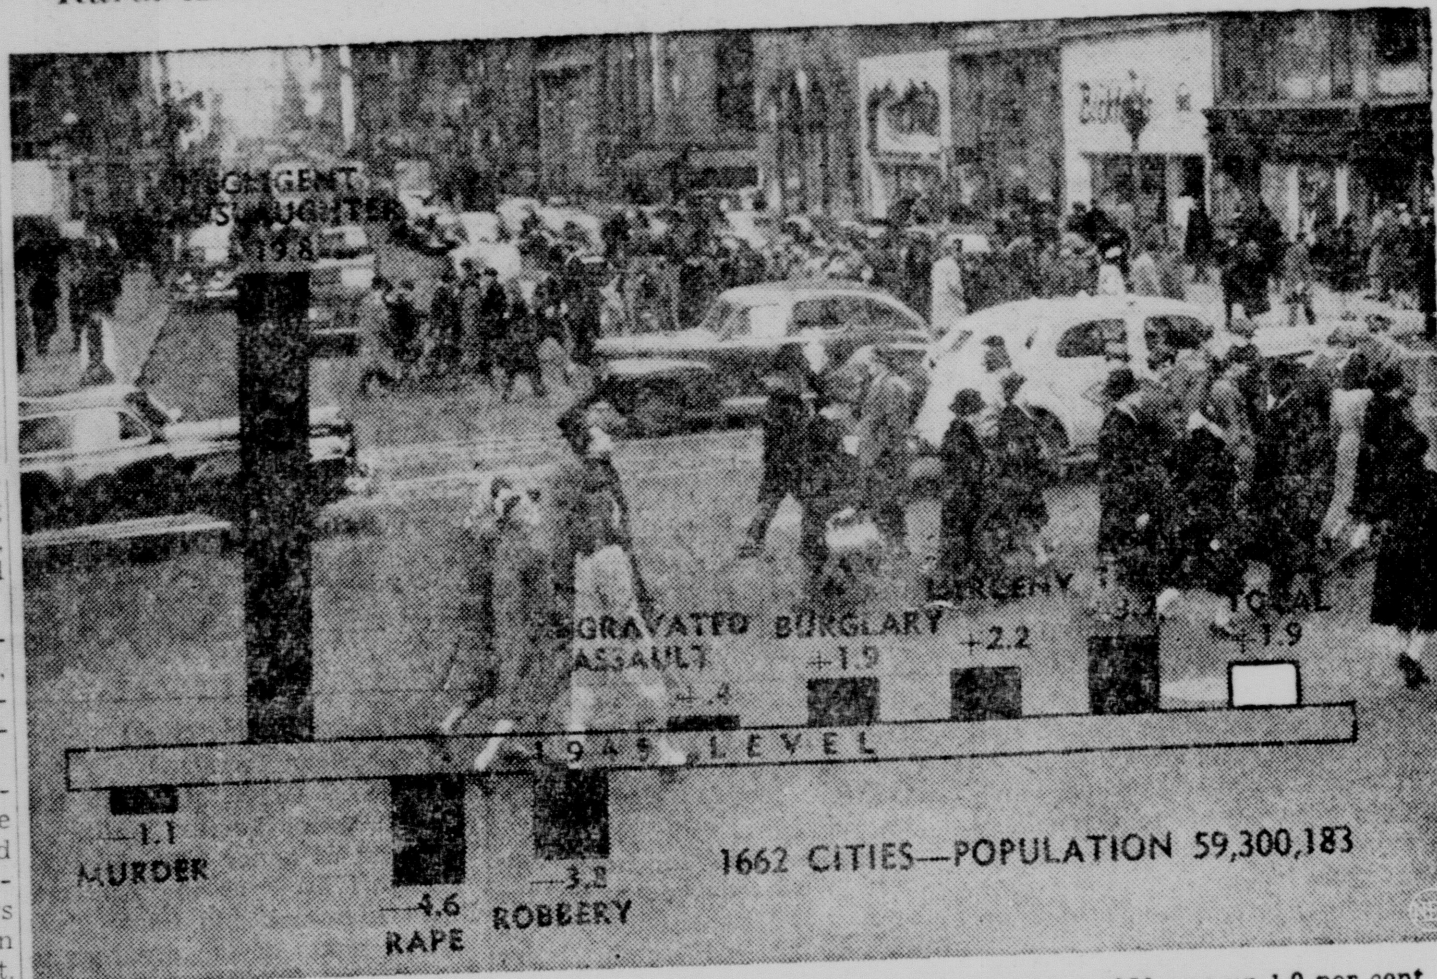

There is no indication that life under the Reds had been any better here than in South Korea.

There are no new buildings. The houses are the same poor mud and lathe affairs one finds in the south. There are no new roads. An air of poverty hangs over the place, age-old dilapidation which the new destruction of war and bombs cannot conceal.

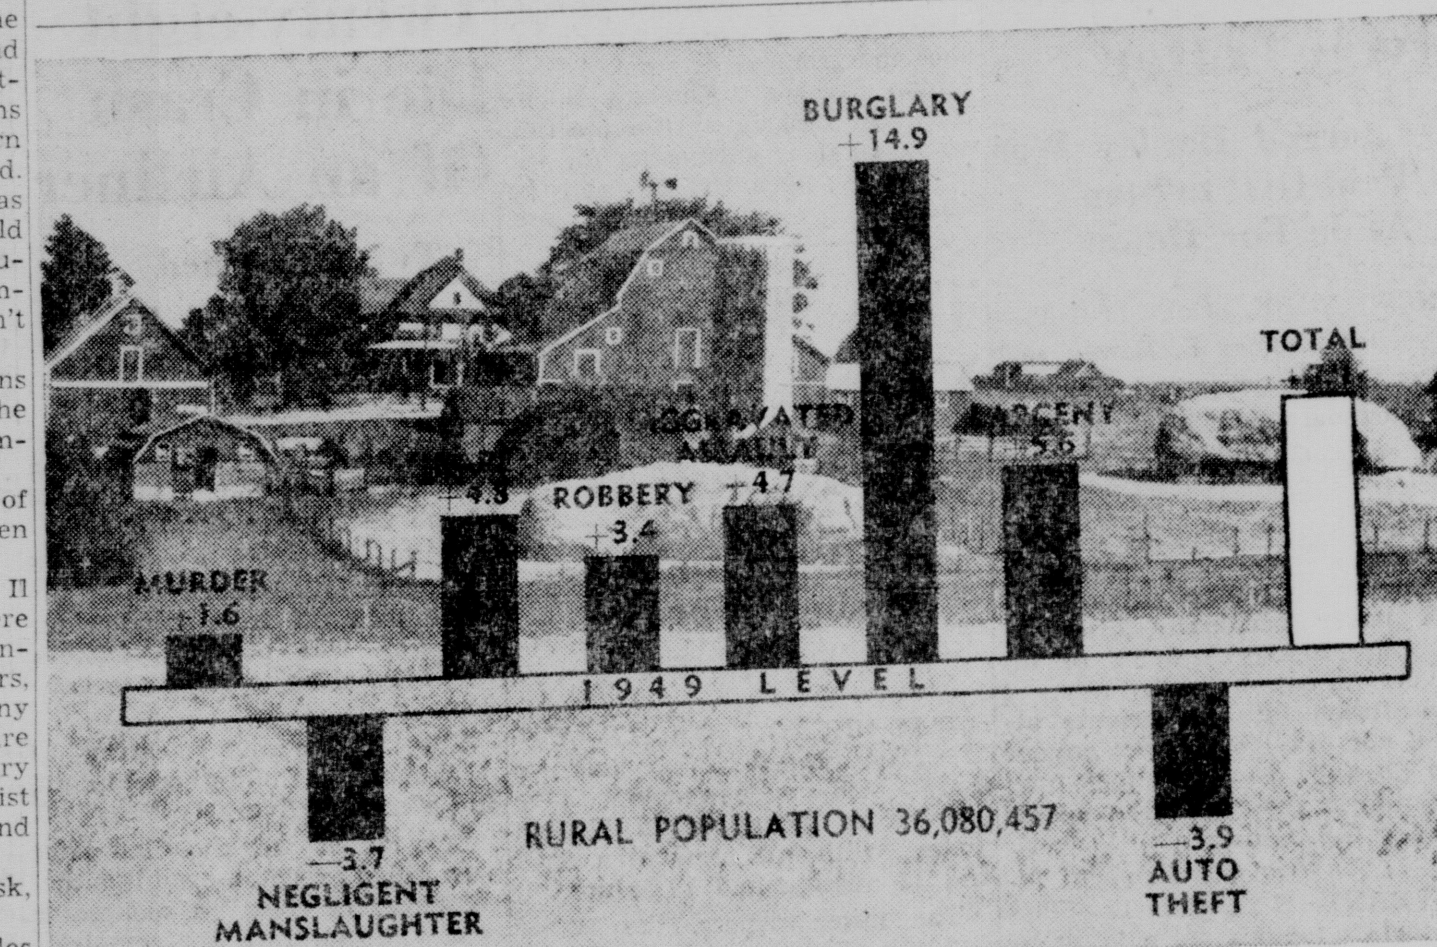

Prowling Americans found nothing of souvenir value. But

FBI Report Shows Crime Continuing Upswing

Rural Areas Show Larger Rate of Increase Than Cities

MORE CRIME IN THE CITY—Crime in the cities during the first half of 1950 was up 1.9 per cent over the same period in 1949, according to the FBI's semiannual report. Negligent manslaughter saw the steepest rise—19.8 per cent over the preceding year; auto theft was next with 3.2 per cent. Three crimes—murder, rape and robbery—declined slightly during the period.

COUNTRY'S CRIME WAVE MOUNTS—The nation's postwar crime wave continued upward during the first half of 1950, with the total number of offenses known to police up 7.4 per cent for that period over the same period in 1949. Greatest increase, in rural areas, was in burglaries. Negligent manslaughter and auto theft—on the increase in the cities—were each down in rural reports. Data are from the FBI's semiannual reports on crime in the United States.

PTA Discusses Amendment No. 1

The Otterville P. T. A. met October 15 for its regular meeting. The president, Mrs. Monroe L. Neale, presided. The main thought of the evening was Amendment No. 1. After Mr. Harrison made a talk explaining it, the association voted to endorse it. The first Parent Education study group will meet October 30 with Mrs. Glen Nelson.

After the business session Miss Charlotte Devine presented some of the high school students in a very interesting program, as follows: double duet, "Whispering Hope" and "Sometime" by Joan Bretall, Dorothy Homan, Doris Robertson and Virginia Finley; piano solo, "When Day Is Done," by Anne Neale; duet, "Beyond the Sunset," by Joan Bretall and Dorothy Homan; playlet, "Amendment No. 1," by Eddie Siefert, Virginia Finley, Clara Aeschbacher and Dorothy Homan.

Mrs. Monroe Neale, Mrs. Burford Jenkins and Mrs. Lewis Zumbach are delegates to the State P. T. A. convention to be held in St. Louis, October 17, 18 and 19.

The next regular meeting of the P. T. A. will be November 14.

On October 6 the P. T. A. sponsored a pie and notion supper. There was a very large crowd in attendance. The following teachers and their pupils presented a very interesting program before the sale of the pies: room 1, teacher, Mrs. Herbert Kuhn; room 2, teacher, Mrs. A. Y. Burford; room 3, teacher, Miss Beulah Peoples; room 4, teachers, Mr. Riddle and Gail Oehrke.

The Girls' Glee club sang, "Spring Time in the Rockies" and "Londonderry Aire," directed by the music teacher, William Jessee. The songs were accompanied by Miss Anne Neale.

The net proceeds of the sales were $152.49 which will be used for the hot lunch program.

Buffalo Stampede Has Been Filmed

BILLINGS, Mont. — (P)—A buffalo stampede, awesome but familiar sight to Indians and pioneers of another day, has been caught for the movies. Jeeps, aided by Indians on horseback, recently stampeded the Crow Indian tribe's bison herd for a scene in the motion picture "War Path," dealing with the life of Gen. George Custer.

Asians to Boost Natural Rubber

SINGAPORE—(P)—Three rubber scientists from Malaya, Indonesia and Indochina will visit the United States in October to promote natural rubber in the face of present synthetic competition. The mission will tell United States consumers the ways in which natural rubber may be improved. They will also find out what quantities of rubber are preferred. The U. S. has repeatedly complained that Southeast Asian rubber producers have been supplying undergrade rubber.

Headquarters for HADACOL in Sedalia
MAIN STREET CUT-RATE DRUG
HADACOL BUILT UP THESE FOLKS WHILE CONVALESCING AFTER STAY IN HOSPITAL
by supplying them with Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin which their systems lacked

Mrs. Evelyn Walls, Route 3, Scottsboro, Alabama, who had such deficiencies: "After going through a gall bladder operation, I was very weak and run-down. I couldn't even get up to cook my husband's meals or help him at any time. One day I heard about HADACOL on the radio, so I tried a small size. At the end of the week I started to eat again. That was one year ago. Now I have the pleasure to tell you I'm feeling fine again and I work harder than any man. I'm 37 years of age and I'm the happiest lady in the world to know about such a product." (HADACOL is a wonderful formula to build folks up while convalescing after a sickness when their systems lack Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin.)

Miss Julia Boyd, of Fernwood, Mississippi, whose son lacked these elements: "I have a little son, 7 years old. When he was four he had pneumonia, and it left him thin and delicate. I tried all kinds of tonics, but nothing seemed to do him any good. He would have one cold after another, had no appetite. Early this fall he took pneumonia again. A few days after I brought him home from the hospital, I began giving him HADACOL. I have given him three large bottles. Now he goes to school regularly and eats twice as much as he did before, sleeps much better, and he has gained weight. I can't praise HADACOL enough. I think it is wonderful for both old and young." (Be sure to try this great new HADACOL.)

Mrs. S. C. Tawney, Box 38, Kimballton, Virginia, whose system was so deficient: "I am 30 years old. I spent 35 days in the hospital and was so thin and run-down I looked like a shadow before I went to the hospital. That was before I heard about HADACOL. Since I have been taking HADACOL, I have given up my shadow form and am once again my happy self. Since HADACOL did so much for me, we are a HADACOL family now. My husband is 45 years old—our three sons are six, three and two years. We want to send our sincere thanks to The LeBlanc Corporation and also Big Jeff, the radio star, who was the first we heard tell about HADACOL." (Why don't you try this great product?)

Mr. James E. Elliott, of Kenbridge, Virginia, who had such deficiencies: "I suffered distress with my stomach and spent much time in the hospital. My only benefit was in the eating of baby foods. It was my lucky day, indeed, when I heard of HADACOL. I now eat any kind of food. I feel fine now and am so glad. I got three of my friends to try it, and they say it is wonderful. I sleep much better now, and words can't express how HADACOL has helped me. Thanks to HADACOL." HADACOL is not a quick-acting antacid which gives symptomatic relief—HADACOL relieves the cause of stomach distress due to such deficiencies. (Continued use helps prevent such misery from returning.)

IMPORTANT: Men, women and children who are left in a weak, run-down or nervous condition after a sickness because their systems lack Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin should start taking HADACOL at once. HADACOL not only supplies deficient systems with more than their daily needs of important Vitamins B₁, B₂, Iron and Niacin but also helps ful amounts of Calcium, Phosphorus and Manganese—elements so vital to maintain good health and to keep physically fit. A big improvement is often noticed within a few days' time! You owe it to yourself—you owe it to your family—to give HADACOL a chance to help you get back on your feet. Know what it means to have that wonderful, wonderful HADACOL feeling. Toymaker a Doll Psychologist; Has to be to Please the Moppets

By RICHARD KLEINER
NEA Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK — (NEA) — It's a pretty safe bet that one of the busy little elves and gnomes at Santa's workshop is a graduate psychologist.

Because there's a lot of psychology in the toy business. The cute little moppets have their own cute little ideas about what they like to play with. And it takes a keen-minded toy designer to please them.

Across the desk of Benjamin Michtom, toy company vice-president, come hundreds of ideas for new toys every year. Some come from customers, but most are from average people who suffer from toy-type brainstorms.

Since Michtom specializes in dolls, most of the ideas are for new dolls. One such was for a doll with a running nose. It would have some sponge rubber inside the head, and the plot was for the kids to squirt water up the nostrils with an eye dropper. Then, when the little mother wanted to act little motherish, she'd squeeze the dolls nose and little drops of water would drop out.

That was rejected. So was the idea for a doll that grows. With a complicated system of ratchets and cogwheels and screws and springs, the monster would grow at the whim of the child. The catch here was that the doll would have to shrink periodically, too, and that would spoil the illusion.

One idea that intrigued Michtom was for a doll that ate. The inventor had everything figured out—except for the delicate problem of waste disposal. Michtom and his staff of six full-time designers worked on that. The best they could dream up was a built-in drawer somewhere near the tummy. But the idea was eventually discarded.

If Michtom, who is in charge of sales for the firm (Ideal Novelty & Toy Co.), OKs the idea, it must then be passed on to the production department as being producible. Next models are made in clay and plastic and the engineering department draws blueprints and makes dies which cost anywhere from $3000 to $10,000.

The initial cost of producing a new doll is tremendous. The firm brings out at least one new doll, with a distinct new feature, each year. It cost $200,000 to produce the first of this year's crop.

The psychology comes in when the dolls—and other toys—are being planned. Through trial and error, Michtom has learned that a successful doll must be one that the child controls. Walking dolls, which have been developed, never sell too well. Michtom thinks that's because the toy is off on its own and the child feels left out somehow.

All toys have to be based on something the child is familiar with. Model cars for guns that are too futuristic are poor sellers. The same merchandise, copies of items the child has seen, will sell fine.

All children like dolls, Michtom has learned, even boys. But to sell a boy something soft and cuddly, you can't call it a doll. Boys who own dolls are "sissies," but boys who own doll-like replicas of their cowboy heroes are red-blooded he-men. Michtom's firm calls it dolls-for-boys "pals." He says that psychology is the secret of the Teddy-Bear—a-boy's-doll-that-isn't-a-doll.

Children, says Michtom, are perfectionists. Their toys must be exact replicas, and they'll detect the slightest changes from the real thing.

Once, a six-year-old was touring the factory. He was interested in the plastic model planes, and was being told that this was a Hellcat, that one a Corsair, this one a P-40.

"That's not a P-40," the boy insisted. "The dihedral angle of the wings, is wings."

P. S. The dihedral angle of the wing—whatever that might be—was changed.

Some Japanese Dislike Treaty Prospects

By SIGRID ARNE

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Normally conquered nation stretches eager hands for a peace treaty awarded by the victors. There is no such whole-hearted reaction in Japan.

The U. S. is leading a movement among the Pacific allies to restore Japan to peace-time footing. The reluctance on the part of large numbers of Japanese lies in the conditions that surround the treaty writing. It is possible that Russia and China—Japan's two huge Communist neighbors—will refuse to sign the treaty the U. S. is proposing.

Some Japanese agree with Premier Yoshida that the "best alternative" is to accept a treaty from whatever Allies will agree. Other Japanese want no treaty until they get one which includes Russia and Red China.

This split in Japanese thinking was tested in the June 4 elections. The two main issues were a separate treaty "with Russia and China excluded" and the government policy of opposition to Japanese Communists.

Yoshida's liberal party won 76 seats in the House of Councillors, the upper house of the Japanese diet. The chief opposition, the Social Democrats, won 61.

The treaty terms the U. S. government is proposing must be very tempting. They place no limit on Japanese re-arming, ask no reparations, place no limits on trade.

They would, however, ask Japan to give up the Ryukyu Islands, which include Okinawa, and place them under a U. N. trusteeship with the U. S. administering them. They ask Japan to give up any demand for Formosa, with the U. N. perhaps deciding Formosa's future status. The U. S. will want military bases in Japan and the right to station troops there.

The Russians are being consulted, with the rest of the Allies, but how Moscow will feel about the terms is not known. Moscow has always rebelled at the very first step in American thinking about a Japanese treaty. It wants Japan's peace-time role to be settled by only the U. S., Britain, China and the Soviets.

The U. S. says all the Pacific Allies should sit in. They include: Australia, Burma, Canada, China, France, India, the Netherlands, New Zealand, Pakistan, the Philippines, Britain, the U. S. and the U. S. S. R.

President Truman has refused to say whether the U. S. would proceed with a treaty even though Russia stays out. But the fact that he has ignored Russia's demand for a Big Four settlement implies that he would.

Premier Yoshida's government has dealt sternly with Japanese Communists. In the immediate postwar period the Communists were established as a constitutional party. But they became increasingly intemperate, winding up with a rally May 30 at which five U. S. soldiers were beaten.

By July the Japanese government closed down 67 Japanese Communist publications. Japanese newspaper publishers began firing employees who were Com-

Big-Shot Mafiusi With Strong Political Pull Not Easily Deported

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1950, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

(ED. NOTE: Here is another of Drew Pearson's penetrating columns on the rulers of the United States crime world, the Mafia.)

WASHINGTON.—More than three years ago this column called the Justice department's attention to the fact that Frankie Costello, head of the Mafia and king-pin American gambler could easily be deported inasmuch as he had falsified his naturalization oath in 1925.

Any other citizen with less political pull would have been deported long ago. For instance, Rudolf Salli, a Finn who risked going back to Russified Finland during the war to get information for the United States, is now in the process of being deported because in 1918 and 1920 he was convicted of a technical forgery and driving a car in which there was bootleg liquor.

Salli worked for the OSS during the war with the German underground, got valuable information for the U.S.A., and now, if deported back to Finland, will be shot as a spy.

On the other hand, Frankie Costello, if deported back to his native Italy, would live peacefully off his accumulated wealth. During prohibition, in contrast to Salli, he operated the biggest fleet of rum-running boats off the New Jersey coast, equipped with machine guns. However, Costello is not being deported for a simple reason—he has contributed heavily to many political campaigns, especially the Democratic party in New York.

Meanwhile here is a continuation of the roll call of Mafia leaders, the most secret list of criminals in the United States:

Illinois

ANTHONY ACCARDO, River Forest, Ill., and Surfside, Fla.—Al Capone's heir, and probably the most influential member of the Mafia in the Chicago area. His activities seem to be confined almost exclusively to gambling, and he calls himself a "betting commissioner." He threatened James Ragen before Ragen was bumped off June 24, 1946, and when the Capone syndicate moved in on the Continental racing wire. Tony Accardo was tried in November, 1948, for conspiracy to defraud and for concealing material facts, but not convicted. He is now ducking the Kefauver committee.

CHARLES FISCHETTI, Chicago, and Miami, Fla.—One of the most powerful figures in the underworld, has connections with every important mob on the east coast; is equally prominent with Tony Accardo in the Mafia, and is also ducking the Kefauver committee. Charles and Rocco Fischetti, cousins of the late Al Capone, loaned $300,000 for the building of the late Bugsy Siegel's Flamingo hotel in Las Vegas.

LOUIS CAMPAGNA, alias "Little New Yorker," Chicago.—Is a leading figure in the Mafia and the Capone gang; one of the notorious Capone convicts, jailed in 1945 for extorting millions of dollars from the movie industry, then released on parole. Campagna was also sentenced in Chicago for bank robbery, back in 1919.

PHILIP D'ANDREA, Chicago.—Another of the Capone parolees who was jailed in the 1945 movie extortion case. Once a bodyguard for Al Capone, D'Andrea now spends most of his time at Tarzana, Cal., but is still influential in the Mafia in Chicago.

CHARLES GIOE, alias "Cherry Nose," Chicago.—Another of the Capone convicts, now out on parole following the movie extortion case. Only recently, Gioe changed his last name legally to Joye.

ROCCO DE GRAZIO, alias "Gramps," Melrose Park, Ill.—A prominent Mafia member and Capone mobster in the Chicago area. He was investigated in connection with the Kansas City Mafia killing of the 11-year-old Carramusa boy. De Grazio got 18 months for violating the income-tax laws in 1935.

PAUL DE LUCIA, alias Paul Ricca, alias "Paul The Waiter," River Forest, Ill., and Berrien Springs, Mich.—A member of the grand council of the international Mafia. He started out as a waiter, is now a multi-millionaire, is close to the Fischetti brothers; known to be a backer of gambling houses. He also was sentenced, then paroled in the Brown-Bioff movie extortion case.

ANTHONY CAPEZIO, alias "Tough Tony," Chicago.—An important Mafia henchman in the Chicago area. His name has been linked with narcotics cases, but he has never been arrested. He was also investigated in connection with the Carramusa killing. In Chicago, Capozio is known as the boss of Grand and Western avenues.

RALPH CAPONE, alias "Bottles," Mercer, Wis.—His influence in the Mafia and the underworld is chiefly a matter of prestige as the late Al Capone's brother. Ralph still has his finger in underworld enterprises, however, and operates the Rex hotel and Billy's bar in Mercer.

New England Gangsters

RAY PATRIACA, Providence, R.I.—King of the rackets in Rhode Island and surrounding territory; known to be associated with Frank Costello. In 1940, Daniel H. Coakley, a member of the Massachusetts governor's council, was impeached for obtaining Patriaca's release from Massachusetts state prison.

FRANK IACONE, Worcester, Mass.—Closely

associated with Patriaca, in New England rackets. After Patriaca was released from prison, Iacone delivered an ultimatum to Patriaca to stay out of Worcester. This was followed by a series of robberies on Iacone's enterprises, after which Iacone and Patriaca patched up their differences. They worked together as rum-runners back in prohibition days, then Iacone started "bean" games and graduated into big-time gambling.

The West

JACK DRAGNA, real name is Antonio Rizzotti, Los Angeles.—Boss of the Mafia on the west coast; operated the Universal Sports News, which distributed racing news in California and parts of Nevada, received $500 weekly from the Illinois Sports News, Chicago, until exposed. Dragna is mixed up with just about every important mobster in the underworld, was once arrested with Charles Fischetti, has his finger in west coast rackets, including the labor rackets in which he is associated with John Rosselli, another of the movie extortion parolees. Dragna's headquarters is reported to be the Savoy Shirt Shop, operated by Joe and Freddie Sica. Dragna was arrested for attempted extortion July 6, 1910; sentenced to three years for felony Jan. 26, 1916; arrested as a murder suspect, May 25, 1916; arrested as a robbery suspect July 29, 1930; picked up on suspicion of robbery Dec. 6, 1946.

EUGENE SMALDONE, Denver, Col.—Is the Mafia power in the Rocky Mountain area. His Smaldone gang dominates the rackets in northern Colorado. Its principal enforcer is Frank "Blackie" Mazza.

Michigan Mafia

ANGELO POLIZZI, Detroit, Mich., and Clarks Summit, Pa.—Belongs to the grand council of the international Mafia and he has made several trips abroad in that connection. He also replaced Pete Licovali as Mafia boss in Michigan after Licovali went into semi-retirement on a ranch near Tucson, Ariz. Polizzi is also tied closely with the Mafia crowds in New York, owns powerful interests in the coal, construction and brewing businesses in Pennsylvania, has been arrested repeatedly for carrying concealed weapons and on murder charges, but has never been convicted. Born in Sicily, he is an American citizen by virtue of an Army record in the first world war.

PETE LICOVALI, Grosse Pointe Park, Mich., and Tucson, Ariz.—Boss of the Michigan Mafia until he moved to his Grace ranch near Tucson. However, he still has a finger in the Detroit rackets. Licovali was sentenced to two years June 21, 1933, for attempting to bribe a customs officer in connection with a liquor case.

FCC's Ruling on CBS Color TV System Causes Uproar Among Set Manufacturers

By Sumner Ahlbum

It doesn't seem very long ago that the naked limbs of a television aerial sprouting from a neighbor's roof was something of a distinction, and short-sighted experts were insisting that this thing called video would never be as important as radio.

Now the television aerial has become common flora on most of the American landscape, and the same experts, having exchanged the clouded crystal ball for a video tube, are insisting that radio will soon take a back seat.

With this turn-about accomplished, they are now in the midst of another controversy: Are the wrestlers ready to appear on living-room screens in black and blue, or should they stick around in plain black and white for a while longer?

The Federal Communications Commission has decided that the public shouldn't have to wait for color television, and has given the Columbia Broadcasting System permission to go ahead with color telecasts. The rest of the industry, which saw mostly the color red when the decision was announced, thinks the idea is premature.

Opposition is based on the fact that the CBS color system is mechanical, and thus will be outmoded when an electronic system is perfected; that it will require some 8,000,000 owners of TV sets to buy converters or adapters to pick up the CBS color telecasts on their present receivers. Despite FCC approval, there may still be a long legal fight before color goes out on the air.

The argument, it seems to us, is sort of a tempest in a TV tube. The FCC ruling doesn't say that television fans have to look at the color broadcasts. At the outset, in fact, only about 20 hours of color will be on the air each week, and there will be plenty of black and white for people who don't want to spend the money for the gadgets that will show them whether an actor's eyes are blue or brown.

What the FCC did was to push the development of color TV along a little faster by taking it out of the laboratories and letting the public have a look at it. After what happened to the experts who were pooh-poohing TV's future a few years back, we're not making any predictions. But it's pretty hard to stop progress, even with court injunctions.

Reich to Get U. S. Recruits

The recent decision by the U. S. to have newly-inducted Army recruits receive their basic training in occupied Germany is one that will have far-reaching effects.

Since the suggestion for such action came from certain German political leaders, some observers might find therein an indication that the U. S. has decided to give the Germans more voice in occupation policy-making.

However, from a strategic point alone, the decision was a wise one. What better place is there to train men than in the very spot where they may have to fight? In addition, it will build up the Western European defense forces that are face to face with 175 Red divisions now stationed along the borders of the Russian zone of occupation.

MAKING LIFE COUNT WITH SMALL EQUIPMENT

We cannot close our study of how to meet calamity and frustration in any better way than by recounting the story of a missionary family. The surviving son in the family, who had to cut short a theological course because of a very serious major operation, saw me off at an airport, and said, "I'm proud of my family." "Proud of my family"—and well he might be! The parents went to China, and there the father contracted an infection which left him blind. The mother died of cancer after a painful, lingering illness. One son died in college of Addison's disease; another son died in college from an infection following an abrasion of the skin received while in athletic activities. The daughter was stricken with infantile paralysis, and now hobbles on crutches. This is the wreckage of a family that went forth from their homeland to serve China! Is there any watch-care of God here? Does He care at all? Why was the son proud of his family? Well he might be, for though the father and daughter left at home have only a seeing-eye dog and a pair of crutches between them as their physical equipment with which to meet life, yet they are meeting it gloriously. The father is pastor of a church, and the daughter keeps house for him—on crutches. More, she organizes the games of the church, drives a specially equipped car, and is her father's right hand. Together they go on unbeaten, and not only unbeaten, but amazingly useful. The father keeps a church going, and lectures all over the country. And better than all, he keeps a radiant soul! Yes, the young man is right—he should be proud of his family; and we are proud of the young man who can look beyond the wreckage of his family and see there the essential victory of spirit. This is the victory that overcometh the world of sorrow and frustration, even our faith. If the faith is intact, nothing else really matters—you can rise unscathed from anything.

The Christian is safe because he can use anything that happens to him.

O Jesus, hanging on the cross Thou didst say, "My God," even when the light had gone out, and everything had collapsed, with those words on Thy lips Thou didst rise gloriously from gloom to glory. Let no sorrow, no disappointment, pluck those words, "My God," from my lips and from my heart; and I, too, shall prevail over everything. I thank Thee. Amen.

The Doctor Says—

Researchers Race to Find Cure For Dread Influenza Epidemics

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.
Written for NEA Service

The last world-wide epidemic of influenza or "flu" occurred in 1917-1918 at the end of World War I. It caused more than half a million deaths in the United States alone, and millions more in other parts of the world. There was some reason to believe that it might appear again in a similar manner during World War II, but through luck rather than medical skill the world was spared at least for the time being.

Even without a big epidemic, influenza is an important and dangerous disease. Several kinds or strains of the virus responsible for influenza have been discovered. In 1945, a vaccine against the two most common varieties of influenza virus was prepared. This was given to large groups of people who were likely to be exposed to the disease. The results seemed favorable and hope was aroused that here was a method which would protect against influenza.

But this vaccine did not live up to our expectations. The same vaccine was given in 1947, but did not protect the recipients from the disease. The explanation for the 1947 failures has been studied. Apparently it was caused by the fact that the influenza of 1947 came from a different virus strain than that of which the vaccine was made. Now, new efforts are being made to find a vaccine which will work against other strains of virus likely to produce this dangerous infectious disease.

We're Open To Attack

If a new world-wide epidemic of influenza started today, however, we should be practically helpless to combat it. The disease could be carried everywhere so rapidly by airplane that nearly all of those exposed could fall victim to it.

Perhaps before this danger is realized, a more effective vaccine will be developed or one of the anti-biotic relatives of penicillin will be found to be a useful treatment.

Wife Should Welcome In-Laws Into Home as Well as Own Kin

From a man reader comes a suggestion that I write a column about a "man's outraged sense of fair play when he is expected to play host again and again to his wife's numerous and tiresome relatives, but his wife herself and rudely refuses to put the welcome mat out for his own blood and kin."

He adds as a footnote to his letter: "Speaking from personal experience, let me tell you that many a divorce is caused by the kind of wife who insists upon clinging to all of her many relatives, at the same time attempting to alienate her husband from all of his."

That's a dirty trick all right. For in the final showdown it is the wife who has it in her power to either make her husband's relatives welcome in their home or to make them feel that even the briefest visit is an imposition.

Though a man may insist on his right to have his family come for visits, he can't do much alone to make them feel welcome.

If his wife complains that it's too hard on her to cook for them and entertain them, if she stores up the things they say and then tells her husband long tales of woe about how hard they are to get along with, if she makes herself out a martyr for having to put up with a visit from his family, then it is of course, no use for her husband to try to make his relatives feel welcome.

There's Only One Solution

The only decent and happy way for a couple to approach the in-law situation is for the husband to treat his wife's family with hospitable courtesy, to make them feel welcome in his home and, in return, for his wife to treat his people in the same manner.

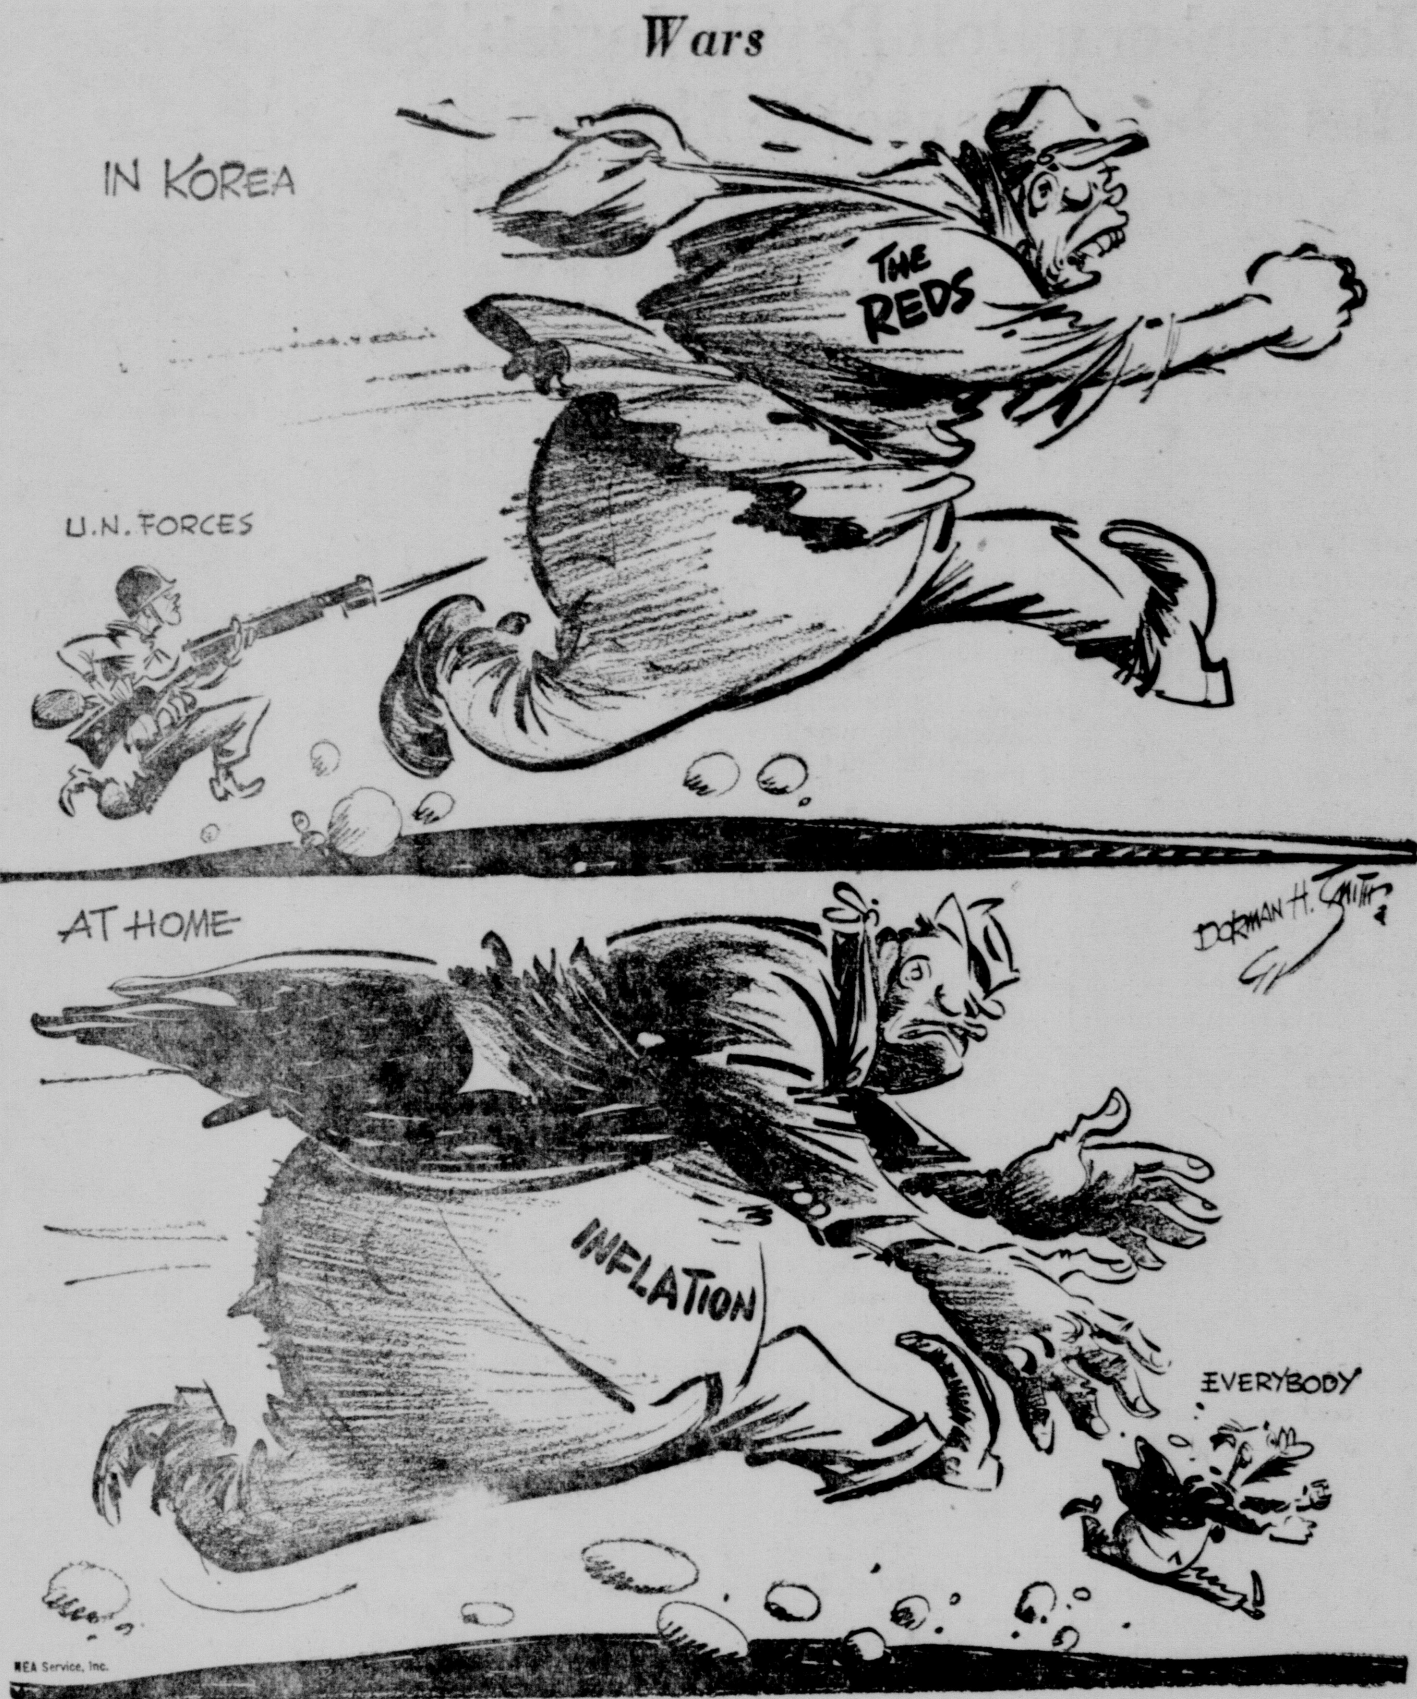

Any wife who expects her husband to "play host again and again to her relatives" and then isn't willing to play gracious hostess to his isn't playing fair.

HE CAME TO KILL

by ADELINE McELFRESH
Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Youthful Leeana Thorne dislikes the atmosphere of Thorne Hill, where her aged, maternal great aunt, Margaret Thorne, rules with an iron hand. Under "Aunt Maggie's" thumb are her younger sister Agatha, who is 74, her nephew Jasper, and Jasper's discontented wife Sandra. The tension of the place seems to increase on the eve of a visit from Peter, Jasper's brother. Leeana goes to meet Peter and as she chats briefly with Deputy Sheriff "Art Preston" the train pulls in and a polished man steps off and asks, "Leeana, if she 'by any chance' had come from 'deah-deah Aunt Margaret'?"

Leeana tried not to show her surprise. Peter Thorne was too good-looking, too immaculate just to have finished a long train trip, so—English. He couldn't be Jasper's brother! He was more of a match for Sandra.

And certainly he bore no resemblance to the wizened little woman who was "deah-deah Aunt Margaret."

Leeana introduced herself. "Ah, yes," he said expansively. "Roger's daughter. Of course. How is poor old Rog these days?"

It was an insult the way he said it, coupled with the wise, wry smile that said so many things. Leeana felt her Irish rising.

She said hastily, "Pops is fine, thank you."

"Still—ah—newspapering?"

"That's rather a strange way to put it," Leeana retorted. Realizing that they had not moved from the spot where she had been standing when Peter first spoke, and that Martin Preston still was watching from the doorway, she suggested, "The car's this way, Peter. Have you luggage?"

"I checked it through. Will you see if it's come, please?"

He thrust baggage checks into her hand and strolled off toward the car. Leeana stared after him. "Your mouth's open."

Too astounded to be angry—even with Mart Preston—Leeana stammered, "Well, of all the—"

"Ahh-ahh," warned the tall young deputy sheriff. "Little girls mustn't cuss."

"I wasn't, but— Ye gods! Who does he think he is?"

Martin Preston's laugh started deep and ran out heartily. "Come on, youngster," he said. "I'll help you with the gentleman's bags."

Leeana Thorne, Jasper's wife, met them at the door. "Well, Peter, was her greeting. "So you've come home."

"Only for a little while, Sandra, old girl. A very little while. You don't begrudge me that, surely."

His voice taunted her, the cold blue-gray eyes turned to granite as they met hers. But the amused smile did not flicker on Sandra's lips. Peter Thorne's sister-in-law was very, very sure of herself. Leeana thought—and wondered what, besides their mutual hatred of old Miss Maggie, was between them.

"Of course I don't," Sandra spoke now in the tone Leeana privately referred to as "purring." "It's just that I doubt that anyone could have a sane, legitimate reason for coming back here. Especially you, Peter."

Leeana's eyes flew to Peter's face in time to catch the fury he masked so swiftly; then she glanced back to Sandra.

But Sandra had turned toward the stairs.

"Ask Jones to bring in Peter's things, won't you, Leeana?" she lunged over her shoulder. "And do go tell Jasper his brother has arrived."

Leeana swallowed her sprouting fear.

"You'll find your aunt in her room."

Sandra Thorne, Jasper's wife, met them at the door. "Well, Peter," was her greeting. "So you've come home."

Thorne instead of Mrs. Jasper." He laughed, hollowly. "Would that have been—better?"

Jasper Thorne's round little eyes looked more like ice-blue marbles than ever, but his face became carefully blank.

"Sandra thinks she's buried here, Leeana. Maybe she is."

"Fiddlesticks! You just lock up your things, Jasper, and go along to Miss Maggie's room. Peter's there now, I think, and—"

Jasper sprang up. Ignoring what probably was another letter to the editor of the Thorne City Gazette, he brushed past Leeana and almost ran down the hall. Leeana felt no curiosity regarding Jasper's manuscript—she had seen too many of his letters before. Quite rabid, they were, on any subject.

She pulled the door shut and went outside to the greenhouse.

ARTHUR JONES was there, fussing with his poinsettias which he feared would not bloom by Christmas time. If they didn't, he told Leeana once, Miss Maggie would be disappointed. And he didn't want her to be—not this Christmas.

The old man was not morbid about his employer's illness. He was not like the others; he, at least, was sincere. He worshipped Miss Maggie.

"It's Miss Maggie's nephew, Arthur," Leeana explained her request that he help with the luggage. "Peter."

"Him!" Arthur snorted. "Last time he was here—"

His grim old jaws ground down hard and he aimed dark brown tobacco juice at his precious poinsettias.

"Miss Leeana," he said, "don't let him fool you, too!"

Kills Elephants With Arrows

LEOPOLDVILLE—(P)—Howard Hill, the Wilsonville (Alabama) bow and arrow champion, has completed a seven-month, 12,000 mile trip through the Eastern Congo, Kenya and Uganda. He was to shoot the outdoor scenes of a new semi-documentary film on African wildlife with the probable title of "Timbo" (Swahili for elephant).

Hill shot all his game with a bow, a type invented by himself and consisting of laminated bamboo. The program of his trip called for the killing of an elephant, a lion, a leopard, a python, a buffalo, a rhinoceros, a crocodile and a hyena. This program was fully carried out, and to be sure the operators wouldn't miss anything, Hill shot two elephants and lots of crocodiles and hyenas, which are not legally protected.

For a lion or a buffalo, Hill said, one arrow is enough. He shoots mostly from a distance of between 50 to 60 yards. The arrow pierces the thick and elastic skin of the African elephant. The rhinoceros is still more vulnerable. Hill shot an arrow into one rhino which completely disappeared.

"The animal never knows whence the silent arrows strike and generally does not discover the hunter but flees upwind, while a good hunter always sneaks in from down the wind," Hill says.

Doctors Back Bath Protest

LONDON—(P)—A distinguished medical journal has supported George Bernard Shaw in his argument that hospital patients get too many baths.

"From personal experience," said the "Medical Press," "we have quite definitely come to the conclusion that it (hospital bathing) has been and is being overdone and that it is time the mischief was abated."

The "Medical Press" said it might have been necessary 100 years ago when patients were likely to be dirty.

Shaw complained about the number of baths given him after he was admitted to a hospital at Luton with a fractured thigh. The 94-year-old playwright demanded a receipt from one nurse to prove that he had his bath for that day.

Morristown, N. J., had 45 forges turning out arms for the Continental Army during the Revolution.

Holland once had about 8,000 windmills, but has only about 1,300 now.

AFTER WAR . . . PLAYTIME AGAIN—Although bitter warfare with its death and destruction passed their way just two days ago, these youngsters in Seoul, South Korea, haven't let it get them down. They're back to their prewar business of having fun. Photo by NEA-Acme Staff Photographer Norman Williams.

Yank Ingenuity: Started With This . .

Badly off for supplies and ammunition because of poor transportation, a unit of the 19th Infantry in South Korea discovered a small, broken-down railroad near their position. Utilizing such battered equipment as the hand car at right, plus their own ingenuity, they put it in working order.

And Ended With This . . .

They soon had it operating as an adequate supply line, with a home-made "putt-putt" engine, as shown below.

TO RING AGAIN—Korea's historic, five-century-old Liberty Bell, traditionally rung on occasions of national jubilation, lies amid the rubble of the Seoul building that housed it. Legend says the bell's peal includes the moan of a child—the child of a beggar woman thrown into the cauldron, along with the treasures of all Koreans present, when the bell was cast in 1468. The bell last tolled on Aug. 15, 1945, when the Japanese surrendered.

Superstition Hurts Pregnant Women

SINGAPORE —(P)—Pregnant Malay women and nursing mothers in Kedah State, in North Malaya, who believe the eating of green vegetables and drinking of water make them less attractive to their husbands are causing medical authorities serious concern.

The Kedah government reports that the health of these women is seriously impaired by lack of a balanced diet. The Malay husbands also share the belief, which makes it even more difficult to prove the falsity of their fears, the report said.

Death Valley Railroad Is a Model

DEATH VALLEY, Colo. — (P) — As a model railroad enthusiast, T. R. Goodwin is just about as red-hot as the weather out here where temperatures make a habit of running into three figures. But there comes a time, Goodwin admits, when enough is enough and he closes the door of the low-ceilinged shed that houses Death Valley's only railroad.

Goodwin, superintendent of Death Valley National Monument, says he doesn't mind mercury readings of 125 to 130. But when the red line creeps past the 150 mark in his hobby haven, he gives up, temporarily. Goodwin has a 16 by 34 foot model railroad layout with sixteen steam locomotives, one diesel locomotive, 20 passenger cars and 60 freight cars. The layout has been five years in the building, includes block signals and switches, 1,800 feet of wiring and track held fast by 20,000 imitation spikes. There is also a village of 40 model houses, cars and figurines for the trains to run through.

Garbo Wins Friends, But Loses Billboards

VIENNA — (P) — Greta Garbo has lost to the Russians an East-West war of billboards in Vienna. Garbo's anti-Communist film "Ninotchka" recently was announced as coming to Vienna for the first time to show the Viennese what Communism is like.

A Soviet officer marched into Vienna's only billboard firm. He demanded 38 huge advertising spaces. The firm, threatened with reprisals, agreed. Two days later, the spaces displayed Russian announcements of the anti-West film, "The Fall of Berlin."

"Ninotchka's" Western promoters relied on newspaper announcements. Tickets for Garbo, an old favorite of the Viennese, already are sold out for weeks in advance.

Columbia And S-C Tie For CEMO Lead

M.M.A. Moves Into Third Spot, Jeff City Drops To 4th

Football games the past Friday in the CEMO circuit found the Smith-Cotton Tigers and the Hickman Kewpies of Columbia tying for top spot in the conference, shoving the Jefferson City Jays down to the fourth slot and the Missouri Military Academy Colonels moving into third position.

The Kewpies spoiled the Jefferson City home coming as they ran away with the Jays by a 20 to 0 score. The Kewpies put on a real offensive show in defeating the Jays, who were previously undefeated in conference play. The Kewpies, with their powerful ground attack and short aerials gained 256 yards while the once mighty Jays could only roll up 61 yards via both the ground and air lanes.

Tigers Claw Pirates 21-0
At Hannibal the Smith-Cotton Tigers rolled over the Hannibal Pirates 21 to 0. When the Sedalia could hold on to the ball they didn't seem to have any trouble in scoring but five fumbles, more than the Bengals had made in all their previous games, kept them from ringing up a higher tally. According to the Tiger coaches the boys played their best game. They said that the backs were running harder and that the line was charging vigorously. This was proved on the statistical side. The Tigers held the Pirates to 51 yards on the ground and in the air while they were busy rolling up 239 yards against the Pirate defense. The defeat dropped the Pirates into a dead lock for last place with the Kemper Military Academy Yellow-jackets, who were idle.

MMA Routes Fulton 21-7
In a non-conference game the MMA cadets ran over the Fulton Hornets by a 24 to 7 score. The Hornets had previously tied the Jays 13 to 13. In this game the Colonels showed the might of the top three teams in the CEMO since the Jays tied Fulton and the MMA team ran the Hornets into the ground.

This Week's Games
Top billing this week goes to the Sedalia-Columbia game at Hickman Field Friday night. The winner of this game should win the conference with MMA having a outside chance. This game will match two strong clubs, both on defense and offense, both do some passing but generally stick to the ground game. In games thus far the Kewpies have run off a T formation but the Bengals have used both the T and the single wing. The Tigers are undefeated in four games and Columbia has suffered one loss, at the hands of Kirksville in a heart breaking game.

Another crucial clash will take place at Hannibal, where the MMA team will visit the Hannibal Pirates. Coach Ira Winn's team hasn't won a conference game this year and lost for the fifth straight year to the Smith-Cotton Tigers Friday night.

Dyer Out as Cards Manager

Tag-Bout Tops Wed. Mat Card Clemson is Schnabel Boys Face Mr. Moto, Savage; Girls in Two Bouts

Wednesday night will see a star-studded wrestling show at the National Guard armory, sponsored by the Pettis County Post No. 16, American Legion. The team-mat event is something the fans have been clamoring for the past two weeks and it will have participants who should provide a full 90 minutes of excitement.

Daniel Boone Savage, the "hick" from Boyd county Kentucky, has been teamed up with "The Great" Moto of Tokyo, Japan to clash with the two German boys Fritz and Hans Schnabel of San Francisco, California, in the main event. It is for the best two falls out of three with the 90 minute limit.

Savage Knows Tricks
Fritz is "itching" for a chance to meet Moto and with the help of brother Hans, Moto is in for considerable trouble providing Savage doesn't pull some of his backwoods tricks and give both Fritz and Hans something they haven't been looking for.

Anyway the fans take it they will be in for a full night of thrills and excitement and front row fans can expect something or someone to land right in their laps if the going gets too rough for either team.

Topping the evening will be two matches between girl wrestlers, the opening event to see Elvira Snodgrass of Columbus, Ohio, in the ring against Mars Bennett, Detroit, Mich. This is a one fall event with a 30-minute time limit.

Olson a Mat Beauty
Ann LaVerne, Canton, Ohio, appears in the semi-windup meeting the beautiful Ellen Olson of Camden, N. J., a girl with plenty of spirit and fight. These two ladies of the ring are well known in the mat circles and both are plenty rough when it comes to the ring sport.

Wrestling fans can expect a banner evening of entertainment with Walter Sirois "in the middle" as the referee.

The Field is Wide Open For Cardinal Job

The Field is Wide Open For Cardinal Job

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 17—(AP)—The field is wide open for the job as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, owner Fred Saigh says.

The post was left vacant when Eddie Dyer bowed out yesterday, saying he was not a candidate because he realized it was the custom of the Cards to change managers after a disappointing year.

Decision Before December
Saigh said he hoped to make a decision on the new manager before the December baseball meetings.

"I have an open mind on the matter," Saigh said. "I do not know whether the new manager will be from within or without the Cardinal organization."

"I plan to start work immediately on the task of lining up the 1951 leader, but I will not hurry myself into a selection, nor will I limit myself to any certain candidates. I will try to obtain the best possible man available for the job."

Managers of two Cardinal farm clubs, Johnny Keane of Rochester and Rollie Hemley of Columbus, have been mentioned for the post.

Saigh admitted he already has discussed the job with Keane and said consideration of Keane for the post was only natural in view of the fine record Keane has had as manager of Cardinal farm clubs.

Keane managed the Rochester club to the International league pennant this year, but lost out in the playoffs.

Hemley led the Columbus club to a victory in the American Association playoffs this year, after finishing third in regular season play, and then to a "little world series" victory over Baltimore of the International league.

May Retire Coaching Staff
With one exception, Dyer's 1950 coaching staff also will be retired unless the new manager desires to keep them. The exception is Clyde (Buzzy) Wares, a Cardinal coach since 1930. Saigh said that Wares would remain with the Redbirds in some capacity since he needs one more year of service to qualify for the major leagues player pension fund.

Other Cardinal coaches under Dyer this year were Tony Kaufmann, Terry Moore and Marty Marion. Marion did duty as a coach in addition to playing shortstop.

Dyer had managed the Cardinals since 1946. He led the club to the pennant and an upset world series victory over the Boston Red Sox his first year, finished second the next three years, but the club ended up in fifth place this year. It was the first second-division finish for the Cardinals since 1938.

Army Holds Top Spot in Football Ranks

Notre Dame by Defeat Saturday In Eleventh Place

By Joe Reichler
NEW YORK, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Army's all-conquering Cadets clung to their position as the nation's No. 1 college football team today. At the same time, once-invincible Notre Dame dropped out of the top ten for the first time in nearly a decade.

Chopping down a strong Michigan eleven last Saturday, 27-6, for their third straight triumph, the unbeaten West Pointers strengthened their first place grip gained a week ago in the Associated Press poll.

Coach Earl Blaik's Black Knights, unbeaten in their last 23 starts, drew a total of 124 first place ballots among the 275 votes cast by sports writers and sportscasters.

Notre Dame's fighting Irish, who a week ago saw their 39-game non-losing skein snapped by Purdue, again failed to impress despite their 13-9 victory over Tulane Saturday. That showing helped push the Irish from 10th to 11th place.

Notre Dame has finished no lower than ninth since 1941 and almost always has been high up in the running during the season. For the first time in years not a single voter gave Notre Dame a first place ballot. The best the Irish got was a third. Their point total was 295.

Army received a total of 2,427 points to lead a field that included 47 colleges. Oklahoma wrestled second place from Southern Methodist, moving up one notch on the strength of its 14-13 victory over tough Texas. It was the Sooners' 24th consecutive victory. The air-minded Mustangs slipped into third place despite their 56-0 cakewalk over Oklahoma A.M.

The Big Three were followed by: 4-Kentucky, 5-California, 6-Stanford, 7-Texas, 8-Maryland, 9-Ohio State, 10-Washington.

Notre Dame was not the only team to fall out of the first ten. Its conqueror, Purdue, almost dropped out of sight, catapulting from ninth to 33rd. The Boilermakers received a dose of their own upset medicine when they bowed to unheralded Miami University of Florida, 20-14.

Miami vaulted from 37th spot to 14th place with 170 points. The Hurricanes received 14 first place ballots. Other teams to gain No. 1 recognition included Maryland (5), Washington (5), Clemson (4), Cornell (2), and Wake Forest (1).

The top teams (number in brackets is first place votes); points figured on a basis of 10 for first 9 for second, etc.):

Top ten:
1. Army (124)	2,427
2. Oklahoma (47)	2,315
3. S.M.U. (63)	2,312
4. Kentucky (9)	1,191
5. California (1)	1,120
6. Stanford	850
7. Texas	788
8. Maryland (5)	552
9. Ohio State	492

Easter Night Wins at Royal

Mrs. William Igenfritz, 615 West Broadway, showing her horse Easter Night in the Five-gaited division stallion stake, any age, was fifth in the class Monday night at the American Royal in Kansas City. The entry was made under the name of Mrs. Goldie Igenfritz, LaMonte.

Mrs. Igenfritz has the horse stabled at the farm of Scott Higgins, LaMonte, from whom she purchased Easter Night several weeks ago.

The class was won by Stonewall's Peep of Dawn, Glenn Acres Farm, Columbia; Easter Vanity, George Roberts and Son, Clinton, second; Gallant Marine, Lloyd Theatre, Skokie, Ill., third; General Patton, E. C. Johnston, Longview, Texas, fourth; Easter Night, fifth and White Oak Stonewall, W. W. Walworth, Fargo, N. D., sixth.

Earlier during the Monday horse show events, Moonlight Stephens, owned by Temple Stephens of Moberly, well known in Sedalia, took the blue ribbon in Music was led by Jud Brayston and the invocation was given by W. O. Stanley.

Named For Fellowship

Roy Lippard, member of the Rotary Fellowship Foundation Committee of the Sedalia Rotary club, presented the name of Harvey Brimmer, Jr., as a candidate for sponsorship by the Sedalia Rotary club for a Rotary Fellowship. On motion of Mr. Lippard, the membership voted its support and sponsorship. Mr. Brimmer is an advanced student at the University of Missouri, and he will be in competition with other students within this Rotary zone for a Fellowship next year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey H. Brimmer, of the Broadway Arms Apartments, Sedalia.

A Rotary Fellowship provides for a full year of advanced study in a university of the candidates choosing in a country other than their own with all expenses paid by the Paul Harris Foundation of Rotary International. The purpose of the Rotary Fellowship is to cement goodwill and better understanding between nations through an interchange of students. The Sedalia Rotary club has financially supported this fund.

Yugoslavs Recruit Former Foes As Technicians
BELGRADE.—(P)—Wealthy in manpower but a pauper in skilled technicians, Marshal Josip Broz Tito's Communist government has been hunting for hard-headed men of experience to put the country's economy on its feet.

Sometimes, the policy has been a bitter pill for the Yugoslavs to swallow for it involves the hiring of technical experts—at wages far higher than the average person here receives—from countries which were blood enemies only a few years ago. Yugoslavia has been recruiting workers from such places as Germany and Italy and has been paying them—in wages and allowances—much more than they could earn at home for doing the same work.

establish additional public recreational facilities in the area west of Liberty park. The city will transfer this land for one dollar and other considerations. If the improvements do not transpire within a reasonable length of time the land will revert to the city, according to the resolution.

Mavor Studer presented H. H. Stobel, who has served the city for the past 37 years in the Fire Department, with a gold watch, chain and knife on behalf of the city in appreciation for the fine service Stobel has rendered to Sedalia. Stobel will be the first fireman to retire under their new retirement plan. He will retire November 1.

Louis H. Payton of the state department of health presented the council with a report on the sanitary conditions of eating establishments in Sedalia. An inspection committee, composed of Willis Jabas, city sanitation officer, and two men of the board of health, inspected 65 of the 70 eating places in the city and came up with these startling results. Whereas the Department of Public Health requires a compliance rating of 80 on their rating chart, the average of the 65 establishments serving food in Sedalia was 45.3.

Payton recommended a three-fold program to remedy this situation.

1. The city adopt a grading system of eating places.
2. The city appoint an officer to enforce the system.
3. The city adopt a food-handlers program.

The grading system, which is used by 25 to 30 cities in the state, is a rating of A, B or C to eating places, thereby notifying customers of the sanitary condition of the establishment. A rating of C is one of probation, and the food-vendor must raise his rating or lose his license. This system is used by Columbia, Jefferson City, Marshall, Warrensburg and North Kansas City in this area.

The inspecting officer appointed by the city will be trained by the department of health and would work in conjunction with the cooperation of the department.

Managers of eating places and their employees will be given a two-hour training program showing the dangers involved in poor food handling and how food should be handled safely.

Sanitation Here is Improving
Payton was quick to remark that sanitary conditions in the city have improved greatly within the past few weeks, and that the milk sanitation in the city has consistently stayed above the accepted standard of 90. He said safe handling of food is strictly a matter of education.

The council passed an ordinance restricting parking of vehicles within a zone near the ambulance drive on the Thompson avenue side of Bothwell hospital.

An ordinance was approved allowing the Missouri Pacific railway to construct traffic barrier gates at the intersections of the Mo-Pac tracks and Ohio and Kentucky avenues.

New Airport Soon
Emery Ellsworth, chairman of the council's Building and Grounds committee, stated that the transaction for the conveyance of ground for the new city airport is expected to be closed within the next two weeks.

Mavor Studer also reported installation of new street lights in the Third Ward will commence within the next ten days. Work has been delayed by the difficulty of securing necessary parts.

A new light will be installed at the intersection of Fifth street and Porter avenue in addition to the other new lights in the Third Ward.

Interest Coupons Burned
Interest coupons on the park improvement bond issue of 1947 totaling $1860, and on the public sewer bond issue of 1947, amounting to $8460, were burned in the meeting.

A license for the sale of five per cent beer was granted Dan L. Jones, 121 South Ohio avenue, and permitting the sale of liquor by the drink was issued to an establishment operated by Lovell Farris and Henry Logan, known as the Friendly Tavern, 117 West Main street.

Councilman Ellsworth presented a motion calling for the council to carry out their annual custom of donating $100 to the Chamber of Commerce Christmas fund. The money will be used on street decorations. Councilman Pete Mene-fee made a motion calling for a council to purchase $100 in tickets to the Policemen's Ball both motions passed unanimously.

rean army. The reason is to avoid irritating the sensitive Koreans and not necessary to reduce available forces in Asia.

They added there was no discussion of cutting down Far Eastern forces in order to build up American strength in Europe.

MacArthur told the President that, having won the Korean battle, the United States could not afford to allow the communists to conquer other and richer areas such as Indochina. The sources said Mr. Truman agreed.

Discussion on Formosa
The general discussed both Indochina and Formosa in general terms during his outline of the Asiatic situation. He repeated his previous contention that Formosa in unfriendly hands would seriously threaten the American defense line in the Far East.

The sources said Mr. Truman then outlined the administration policy concerning Formosa and the political complexities surrounding it. There was no voiced disagreement over this debatable island, the informants added, but it was not clear here whether its discussion would produce a change in American policy.

MacArthur consistently has maintained that Nationalist forces could adequately defend the island if provided arms under the supervision of an American advisory group. It was generally believed here that his recommendations were at least partly accepted at the start of the Korean campaign—the seventh fleet was assigned to protect Formosa and an American military mission was sent there.

The sources said MacArthur emphasized that oriental people were looking to the United States for leadership even though the

Social Events

The Sorosis tea honoring new members was held Monday afternoon at the Heard Memorial Club House.

For a half hour preceding the program new members stood in a reception line with their sponsors where they were introduced and welcomed by the members. The new members were: Mrs. O. L. Scott, sponsored by Mrs. Ed Hoffman and Mrs. R. E. Mullen; Mrs. A. L. Pringle, sponsored by Mrs. Leo Bloss and Miss Etta Hurley; Mrs. J. H. Frederich, sponsored by Mrs. Gordon Stauffer and Mrs. H. F. Rapp; Mrs. J. E. Norlin, sponsored by Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman and Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom; Mrs. Robert Johnson, sponsored by Mrs. E. M. Stafford, Jr., and Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom; Mrs. A. F. Scott, sponsored by Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman; Mrs. Chester Wolf, sponsored by Mrs. Henry Harris and Mrs. J. E. Mitchell; Mrs. Roy I. Coplen, sponsored by Mrs. John Sneed and Mrs. Henry Harris; Miss Margaret Egan, sponsored by Mrs. A. H. Wilks; Mrs. Hugo Sparr, sponsored by Mrs. J. C. McLaughlin, and Miss Hazel Lang, sponsored by Mrs. D. S. Lamm.

On a table on the speaker's platform was a large bouquet of asters in deep pastel shades. Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman, president, opened the meeting and turned it over to Mrs. Thomas Croxton, chairman of the Art and Drama committee.

Mrs. Croxton then introduced Mrs. A. L. Miles, music chairman, who presented a delightful program of music. The program follows:

Duo's: "Schoolmaster" by Hazel Cobb; "Gypsies Are Coming" by James H. Roger, Marcia Rissler and Nona Mae Payne.

Duet: "Norwegian Dance" by Grieg, "Hungarian Dance" by Brahms, Elaine Bohon and Marilyn Green.

Violin solo: "Poem" by Zdenko Fibich, Miss Rose Marie Reed, Mrs. T. W. Croxton, accompanist.

Duo's: "Valse Viennoise" by Carl Parrish, "Jamaican Rumba" by A. Beymin, Mrs. Elythe Ross and Miss Mabel DeWitt.

Mrs. J. C. McLaughlin in the absence of Mrs. C. A. Wright, social chairman, invited the Korean campaign set the pattern for United Nations' opposition to further communist expansion. The general said the United States must take the initiative in blocking fresh Red thrusts.

MacArthur predicted the communists would strike again at any one of several world wide trouble spots including Indochina where some observers believe they may already have started their new campaign. He has said consistently that defeat in Korea would not alter what he has described as Kremlin plans for world conquest.

The United Nations fight in Korea was regarded here as the final development in a long process of drawing a line in Asia beyond which a communist advance would not be permitted.

Sorosis members to the dining room to be served. The table was covered with linen embroidered cloth with lace inserts and was centered with an arrangement of autumn flowers with yellow and red predominating. On either side were lighted white tapers in silver holders.

Mrs. Dimmitt Hoffman, president, and Mrs. H. E. Lindstrom, immediate past president, presided at the coffee and tea urns.

Serving were members of Mrs. Wright's social committee, Mrs. James Lebahn, Mrs. Constance K. Hayes, Mrs. E. W. Thompson, Mrs. Arthur Klange, Mrs. John C. McLaughlin, Mrs. Herman Bloss, Mrs. I. H. Reed, Mrs. George Yeaman and Mrs. F. L. Lively.

During the tea musical selections were given by Miss Rose Marie Reed, violinist, with Mrs. T. W. Croxton at the piano.

The program next week will have as the speaker Mrs. Wiktor Labunski, wife of the Dean of the conservatory of Music in Kansas City, recently of Poland, who will talk on "Why I Am Happy in America."

Mrs. A. A. Ferguson and Miss Anna Weir went to Slater Thursday where they attended a meeting of District No. 5, General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Mrs. Ferguson and Miss Weir are both members of the Nautilus club of LaMonte. Miss Weir is a past district president and Mrs. Ferguson was formerly a district officer of District No. 5.

Smithton has succeeded where other towns have failed. Today the small residential and farming community stands near the ruins of two settlements which still remain in the minds of those who inhabit the territory as a reminder that continued growth and expansion in that early era was a far greater task than many had anticipated.

One of these towns, the first to appear in the Smithton township, was Priceville. It was alleged the land owners in that community were swindled in some way or another and the village was deserted soon afterward and fell into decay.

The other community, now extinct save for the foundations of a few buildings which were uncovered recently, was laid out shortly after the Priceville settlement was abandoned. This town was named Farmers' City.

Railroad Extended Line
In 1859 the Missouri Pacific railroad company decided to extend the line into Pettis county, following an agreement with the county. The county promised to raise $30,000 to aid in the building of the line in its area. When the line finally did enter the county it was stopped at a point that is now Smithton and a depot was built.

A year earlier, 1858, William E. Combs entered deeds to this land at the land office in Warsaw. When the Priceville attempt fell short of success and the railroad stopped at the Smithton site, Combs decided to lay out a town there. Half the town lots were given to the railroad company and other plots were offered free to settlers, provided they would locate there. The railroad and the promise of free land drew the residents of Farmers' City to the new community and soon after the railroad's arrival Farmers' City was deserted.

Origin of the Name
A name was sought for the new town and Combs, who was a personal friend of Gen. George R. Smith, decided to name it Smithton in honor of the Pettis county landowner. Later, around 1871, the name was changed to Smith City. Finally, through constant change by the residents, it was shortened to Smithton.

Among the first groups to enter the town was a German unit, which had come from the east in search of cheaper and more fertile land. They were followed by Irish and English railroad employees who left their jobs and remained in the town.

A Religious Community
From the beginning Smithton was an extremely religious community. The first church in the vicinity was the Lake Creek Methodist, built by a number of German Methodists. The Flat Creek Baptist church followed soon afterward.

The Baptist church was destroyed during the Civil War by soldiers and was rebuilt in Smithton itself. The churches of Smithton immediately became the most important factor in deciding the town's present character.

As early as the 1870's the churches began to dictate to the people. In January, 1881, the Baptist church came out with a proclamation prohibiting dancing and parties. Another issue ruled upon by the church at this time was croquet. In the ruling it was decided that the playing of croquet on Sundays would not be tolerated and that those participating in such games would be considered irreligious and guilty of sin. It was discovered in 1883 that this particular church had been built on land belonging to the Missouri Pacific railroad. The railroad, however, saw the importance of churches to the citizens and gave the land to the congregation.

No Saloons in Smithton
Another point that the churches finally won out on was the question of saloons. Although today there are no saloons in Smithton at one time various individuals were constantly making attempts to keep one in operation.

It had been a tradition, however, that no taverns should be allowed and the owners soon discovered that a town as full of churchgoers as Smithton was a poor location for a saloon.

About 1872 a saloon did appear in Smithton and an immediate temperance drive was launched. Many were opposed to the drinking house, but the fact that never before had there been a saloon in the town led many to regard it with awe and as a result to forget their distaste.

the bar made sure he had legal licenses to operate and to add to the privacy of his patrons had frosted glass panes placed in the windows.

Things went along free of any trouble until Christmas Eve, 1874. That evening "Grandma" Warren, Smithton's Carrie Nation, entered the saloon and smashed as many show cases and whiskey bottles as she could reach with her cane. Before the occupants could eject the distraught person things were in shambles.

Followed Suit

Four local rowdies heard of Grandma Warren's success and gathered from it a plan. On New Year's Eve the four, armed with long cane-like clubs, strolled into the bar and began to lash their clubs around breaking as many bottles as they could. During the wrecking the four gayly sang, in loud clear voices, songs appropriate for the New Year festivities.

Seeing that all chances of saving the saloon were lost, the bartender fled. The youths rolled one untouched barrel of whiskey into the street and cracked the lid. As the citizens would pass to view the wreckage each was offered a drink from the barrel. Many of those who refused the drink were doused with the liquor and jeered.

Finding this boring, the four went back into the bar which by this time had filled with smoke from a damaged stove and carried the stove into the street. Pacing off several yards the four took turns shooting at the stove and the several stray dogs that had the misfortune to wander on to the street.

As daybreak neared the four, some weary and filled with whiskey left the scene of destruction and went to their homes to sleep off the effects of their activities.

Boycott Employed

Following this initial attack against saloons, others that followed found they, too, were unable to operate successfully. The violent methods of Grandma Warren and her four apostles were done away with, however, and the town boycott was employed. The absence of patrons, as a result of this boycott, soon convinced the saloonkeepers that such a business was unprofitable in Smithton.

Another incident related to Smithton saloons is also worthy of being noted. One saloon in the town was built without a basement and instead raised several inches off the ground. The space between the floor of the saloon and the ground left just enough room to admit a grown man.

It is told that several of the residents, who were not as strongly opposed to drinking as were their fellow citizens, would crawl under the saloon and bore holes into the floor. They would continue this until one punctured a keg of whiskey. The men would then make frequent visits to the spot, unplugging the hole, drink their fill while lying on their backs and then plugging the hole again before leaving. This practice was also instrumental in causing that particular tavern to close.

Indian Scare

Although the town was staunchly opposed to drinking and similar activities it was not adverse to having a good time on occasions. One example of the light heartedness of the people is the Indian scare.

A group of men in Smithton decided one afternoon that they would play a joke on the residents of a neighboring community. They dressed themselves in outfits resembling Indian garb, stained their faces and applied war paint. Dressed in this manner the band proceeded down Flat Creek toward the nearby community.

A man who was fishing on Flat Creek that day sighted the Indian horde in full war dress, approaching in his direction. He dropped his pole and rushed to his home nearby. He then rode into the town that was marked for the "Indian raid" and warned the citizens of the approaching danger. Within a short time almost the entire population had fled. What began as a joke had turned a quiet community into a psychologist's dream of mass hysteria—come true. The frenzied populace rushed for cover in the nearby woods while many others left in wagons and on horseback.

Facts About Your Missouri Division of Employment Security

Compensation To Jobless Averages $931,879 Month

Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles concerning activities of the Missouri Division of Employment Security. This information is being published by this newspaper as a public service in cooperation with the Missouri Press Association.

Approximately 8 billion dollars in unemployment compensation has been paid out to jobless workers of the nation since the employment security program went into effect.

In Missouri unemployment insurance payments began in January, 1939. Over the 11-year period the lowest claims year was in 1944 when $1,564,577 was paid out. The record high year was what is now commonly referred to as "the 1949 depression that didn't happen" when payments totaled $22,563,138. Missouri's 11-year payments total $114,076,560, an average of $10,370,596 annually. The average monthly payments from January 1, 1939, to August 1, 1950, (139 months) was $931,879.

The Division of Employment Security considers benefit payments as accomplishing these two things:

- 1.—They tide over the unemployed worker until he can find another job. They afford freedom from want, and fear, as the legislature intended.
- 2.—Unemployment insurance payments soften the shock of unemployment to business by giving the unemployed worker some income. Thus purchasing power is not entirely cut off.

Benefits Cushion Blow

Freedom from want depends upon money or income. Income depends upon a job. In the event the job drops out from under a job-insured employee, the legislative cushion of unemployment compensation softens the blow to the worker's pocketbook. He still has purchasing power, although to a limited degree.

The most common reason for being jobless is one's inability to find employment, although the worker is ready, willing and able to work.

This is not just a problem of the unfortunate poor. It is an economic problem that is universal in scope. It follows the law of supply and demand.

The result is that when there are more jobs than workers, the employers look for the workers. When there are more workers than jobs, the workers look for the employer.

The state employment security law has provided clearing houses intended to increase opportunities for hiring or job placements through a network of free employment offices which operate in cooperation with the United States Employment Service.

Unemployment, under the private and free enterprise system of economics, is inevitable, and generally unpredictable as to when it will occur, what extent it may be, or what lines of business will be affected.

Joblessness results when consumer demand for the products of any industry weakens, or when sales turnover is not sufficient to keep up with production. When this occurs inventory expands beyond need. Employers then must adjust such affected industries if they are to survive in business. Downward adjustments necessarily result in lay-offs of workers.

It has been stated that in our free enterprise system, unemployment is as much attached to it as the arms and the legs are attached to the human body.

No individual employer can justly be said to be responsible for any unemployment. Responsibility is joint and several. It is the nature of the economic system that any economic injury to any employer, any worker, any industry, tends to injure all, so enmeshed are the interests of every component part of our national industrial and business system.

The risk or hazard of joblessness is, therefore, equally the responsibility of the worker and employer, whether in stable or unstable industries.

In unemployment compensation each of these share the risk—the employer by a "contribution" tax on wages paid, and the worker, out of work through no fault of his own, by getting along on "half salary" as represented by weekly benefits for a limited time.

Insurance Valid in Principle

The principle of sharing the risk of a widespread hazard is well known to the insurance business. It is perfectly valid both as a principle of economics and as being in the public interest.

To some citizens, the unemployment compensation law seems unjust because the 17,000 employers covered by the law foot the whole cost of the program.

But the experts in social economics contend this is not entirely true. They hold that the wage tax is like any other levy and is a cost of doing business, a cost of the production of the product. Like profits, wages and taxes contribute to the price of the product and the person who buys it in reality becomes the taxpayer.

The legislature decreed that the Missouri State Employment Service assist employers and workers alike and without fees. Employers list jobs with the agency. The agency in turn seeks to find the person whose qualifications fit the job. State employment offices are located in 34 cities in Missouri, and in each an active file of job applicants is maintained.

Every Claimant Registers

This active file of jobseekers is augmented regularly because every person who files a claim for unemployment compensation must register for work before he can receive unemployment compensation.

As now constituted the Missouri State Employment Service is an effective job exchange.

It is a central clearing house in the local labor market.

It brings the worker and employer together.

It provides a placement service. It reduces time-waste in job-hunting and labor-recruiting.

Whether the individual seeking the agency's aid is a worker or an employer, the employment service is for the worker's asking. There is no charge for its service.

Vaisya Caste Plans Wedding Economy

NEW DELHI, India.—(P)—An economy drive threatens the lavish marriage ceremonies of the Vaisya caste, the merchant community of the Hindus which controls the wealth of the country. Leaders of the community from Delhi, East Punjab and Uttar Pradesh states will meet at Meerut, near here, to consider proposals for "making the marriage ceremony conform to present-day conditions." Sponsors of the economy move, however, are concerned about the financial drain on the middle-class members who make up the bulk of the community.

The National Geographic Society says New England feels an average of one fairly severe earthquake a year.

In general, the U. S. needs to import only special purpose oils such as coconut, palm, castor and olive oils.

Dairy Show Has Big Crowd

Event at Selken Farms on 'Good Type' of Cows

A large crowd from a wide area attended the Dairy Type School held at the Ernest and Paul Selken Farms at Smithton last week. The school sponsored by the Central District, Holstein Breeders Association had for their instructor one of the nation's top judges, Prof. M. I. Regan, of the University of Missouri Dairy department. Lee Dow, of Sedalia, chairman of the type school committee, presided and was assisted by Donald Eldenburg, of Florence, Heimsoth Brothers of Cole Camp and Edward Strader, of the Missouri State Dairy at Marshall. The theme of the school, "Good Type Cows Stay in Production Longer," was displayed in the first class of the day when four cows whose ages were 12, 13, 14 and 15 were led out for the inspection of the crowd. Each of these animals had been an outstanding prize winner during their life and Prof. Regan said that each had soundness of udder, feet and legs and sharpness of body that any two-year-old heifer would be proud of.

Points Illustrated
The group also heard Mr. Regan illustrate points on the selection of baby heifers and yearlings. Following this the crowd placed four classes of four cows each, these were two year olds, three year olds, four year olds and mature cows. Various members of the crowd in attendance were asked to give their reasons on the placings and some very interesting discussions were brought out.

Mr. Regan pointed out that cows at large, rugged with deep varrells and strength of heart, large muscles, straight on legs, square rumps and udders and at the same time show a sharpness of body along with dairy character.

Prof. Regan was the official judge and placed and discussed each of the four classes of cows, except the first ring, when all four of the first place animals were brought back before the crowd for the championship of the field day. Prof. Regan asked one of the hosts, Paul Selken, who has judged many of Missouri's top dairy shows this fall to place the class. The theme of the day, "Good Type Cows Stay in Production Longer," was again excellently displayed when Mr. Selken placed the championship on a 14 year old cow, which was the unanimous choice of the crowd.

Smithton Succeeded Where Others Failed to avoid what they thought would be a hopeless massacre.

Dashed On

One man, it is reported, ran so fast that his wife had to beg him to slow down and help her to safety. The man is said to have turned around, without stopping and yelled back to his wife who was some distance behind:

"Great Heavens, Mackie, I haven't got time to wait for you." With that the wife reported last seeing her husband in a blur of speed, smash into a thicket and disappear from sight.

The "Indians" realized that they had caused far more confusion than they had anticipated and finally decided to call off the joke. Laughing nervously they explained the situation to the frightened citizens, who for some reason or other, gave the news a very cool and un-humorous reception.

In 1869 Smithton was incorporated. Present mayor of Smithton

'One of Our Prettiest Medals'

"One of our prettiest medals" said President Truman as he admired a fourth oak leaf cluster to the distinguished service medal he presented to Gen. Douglas MacArthur for "distinguished service to the United Nations and the people of Korea." In center is John Muccio, American ambassador to Korea. (AP Wirephoto via radio from Honolulu)

Top Brass After Wake Conference

Top military leaders of the United States pose on the steps of the small stone office building after the historic meeting between President Truman and Gen. Douglas MacArthur. Left to right: Adm. Arthur Radford, commander of the Pacific fleet; General MacArthur, Frank Pace, Jr., secretary of the army and Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman, joint chiefs of staff. is Leonard Hoehns, local business man. He serves, with four other citizens, on the city council.

The town has a volunteer fire department, a small hose truck and a water system and hydrants which can be used in the fighting of fires. A city marshal polices the community.

The town's water is supplied from a 1,000-foot well and the electric supply is obtained from the Missouri Public Service corporation.

The first newspaper was the Smithton Sunbeam, published for the first time in 1896 by Douglass Hewitt. Another paper coming out of Smithton was the Smithton Times, published by F. A. Tave-ner in 1913.

The outstanding industry in Smithton for many years was the Smithton Creamery. Before the plant was closed in 1948 it had passed into the hand of a group of the region's farmers, who employed over 60 persons to turn out butter, cream and other dairy products.

Three Large Churches

There are three large churches in the community, which leaves little room in the civic activities for lodges and other organizations. The town had its own softball league.

The consolidated school in Smithton has an enrollment of about 150 students with a teaching staff of 18 instructors. Four school buses bring in students from 12 districts in the county. This year the gym in the school has been remodeled and additional buildings, to house the home economics, music and manual training departments have been added.

Lights have been installed on the school's baseball diamond. Clyde Thompson, a member of the outstanding Missouri Valley

Yugoslavs Twist Air Drop Story

BELGRADE—(AP)—A new story has been circulating in Yugoslavia as an aftermath to Russian reports—in the face of a poor crop—that the United States has been dropping potato bugs over Eastern Europe to destroy the harvest. "Now," so the satire goes, "the Americans are dropping potatoes to feed the bugs."
